REMINDER NEEDED

THE news that a few importers and agents of cosmetics, toilet preparations and proprietary medicines are not giving the public the benefit of the duty cuts decreed in the last budget should cause Government serious concern. True this is a free port and there is no price control, but the disclosures made by the China Mail yesterday show that while the majority of importers and agents are playing the game, some are still holding back for reasons that are not at all clear.

It is absolutely nonsensical that the claim should still be made today—six months after the duties were abolished—that old stock on which duty had been paid is still being supplied to retailers. Importers rarely operate this way. They take out of bond just enough for immediate use and pay duty on that. Old stock on which duty has been paid should have run out weeks ago. And there are grounds for serious complaint if, as retailers suggest, the benefit is not being passed on because the money saved on duty is now being spent on advertising.

GOVERNMENT is not able to prosecute the offenders but it should take a firm stand by reminding the trade of its budget decision and the need for all to conform—particularly in the case of proprietary medicine on which many people have to think twice about calling a doctor have to depend. We feel it is wrong that a Government decision made for the benefit of the people should be thwarted for six months. The budget concessions were small enough without the community being deprived of this saving.

If the majority can make price cuts—and there are reports of some cosmetics coming down by 20 per cent and others by 15 per cent—Government should see to it that all come into line. A reminder is needed, and in the meantime Hongkong people will take their own steps to show their disapproval—by switching to brands where prices have been reduced.

THE FIRST

IT is appropriate that the first Government report to wear the new armorial bearings granted by the Queen and presented by the Duke of Edinburgh during his visit here in March should be that of the Hongkong Housing Authority which includes among its projects one of the biggest domestic housing developments carried out in the Far East—the So Uk Estate at a cost of $50 million. The Authority aims to provide housing for many of Hongkong's white-collar workers, who at one time were almost completely neglected by official and private enterprise. Capital investment in Authority projects is today more than $100 million and 40,000 people who once lived in squalor now have decent homes thanks to this vast enterprise. It is one of the many big projects of which Hongkong can be proud—and the latest progress report justly deserves to be the first to wear the Colony's new arms.

AIM TO MEET DEMAND IN KOWLOON, HONGKONG BIG TELEPHONE EXPANSION

48,000 New Lines To Be Added By 1963

Beginning Saturday the Hongkong Telephone Co Ltd are initiating a development programme aimed at giving the Colony 48,000 more telephone lines—or 60,000 more telephones—in four years and at least meeting demand in 1963.

The object is to provide 27,000 new telephone lines in Kowloon by November, 1963 and 21,000 in Hongkong by the same period.

And with the exception of Un Long—where a new exchange has to wait for the completion of a new Government building in which it will be situated—the Telephone Company aim to provide a telephone service for all New Territories applicants by the end of 1960.

Announcing this today, the Chairman, Mr H. R. M. Cleland also revealed that in addition to the new exchange for the Un Long area, a new exchange will be built soon at North Point and another would replace the existing Waterloo Road exchange.

Mongkok
Mr Cleland's statement revealed that to meet existing demand, 2,000 lines will be brought into service in the new Mongkok Exchange this Saturday.

This will be followed by another 2,000 lines in November, 2,000 lines in January, 1960 and 1,000 lines in March, 1960, making a total of 7,000 lines in this area.

By October 1960, there would be 19,000 new lines in Kowloon against the existing waiting list of 15,174.

And by May 1961, new exchange lines available in Kowloon will have risen from the present figure of 20,000 to 47,000.

Hongkong
In Hongkong where there were 7,000 applicants for telephones, 1,000 additional lines will be brought into service on the Central Exchange by November this year, said the statement.

On East Exchange, 2,000 new lines would be added in September next year.

The new exchange to be built in North Point would serve subscribers from Queen's College eastwards up to and including Shaughnessy.

Equipment for 8,000 lines initially and 20,000 lines eventually would be housed in this exchange, which would be erected soon.

It was hoped that the 8,000 lines would be brought into service on this exchange by June, 1961 and additional lines in November, 1963.

Extensions would also be made at the East and West Exchanges between June, 1961 and May 1963.

The statement adds: "On the island an additional 21,000 lines will be available by November 1963 which, it is hoped, when added to the existing 27,000 new lines in Kowloon, will at least meet the demand existing at that date."

"The number of lines at present that are, or can be connected to the existing main exchanges is 62,100. This figure, it is hoped, will be increased to 110,000 by November 1963."

The statement said orders have already been placed for all equipment due to come into service by October, 1960, and the ordering for the new Waterloo Road Exchange replacement will follow soon.

A Guess
"In an area developing at the speed at which Hongkong is doing, a reasonably accurate estimate of demand in the various areas is impossible and the best that can be done is a calculated guess," said the statement.

"The remainder of the programme is, therefore, somewhat tentative and the position will probably, of necessity, have to be reviewed from time to time to see whether the programme should be stepped up and whether any changes should be made in the location of the subsequent equipment."

Mr Cleland said there were 62,000 telephone lines at present—against less than 15,500 in 1947, almost 21,000 in 1951, and 33,500 in 1955.

In terms of actual telephones including extensions connected with switchboards, the numbers were 85,000 this year, 17,000 in 1947, 30,000 in 1951, 49,500 in 1955.

Mr Cleland said that because of new exchanges being brought into service and the alteration of existing boundaries of exchanges "there will unfortunately be some inconvenience to present subscribers caused by the number changes that will have to take place, but this cannot be avoided."

"All subscribers so affected will be notified as soon as possible to enable them to cater for any exigencies that may exist."

"Supplementary telephone directories will also be published as is found necessary to minimise the difficulties that must be experienced when fulfilling an extensive development programme such as this company has in mind."

HK Chinese Refugees For Brazil?

Mr H. C. Vieira, Officer-in-Charge of the Brazilian Consulate-General in Hongkong, denied this morning that talks are going on at present on resettlement of 50,000 Chinese refugees in Brazil.

The former Brazilian Consul in Hongkong, Mr Manuel M. Fernandez Alencar, was quoted by the Central News Agency as saying in Rio de Janeiro that the Hongkong Government plans to resettle 50,000 Chinese refugee farmers in Brazil.

However, Mr Vieira would not say that Mr Alencar's statement was untrue, but "I have nothing to add to his statement."

Mr Vieira said, "There was some talk before but it was nothing at all concrete. That was about a year or so ago. No talk is going on at present."

As usual the Brazilian Consulate-General here issues about 40 visas for Chinese immigrants each month. Most of them are relatives of families in Brazil, said Mr Vieira.

A Government spokesman said "this morning he had heard nothing on the subject for the last three years, although the Hongkong Government was always interested in schemes for resettling Chinese refugees abroad."

As early as nine years ago there was some rumour about Hongkong Chinese labour migrating to Latin America, he said, but not since.

LIGHTS FOR BORDER STREET

Electric lights are being installed in the main street of Shaukei, the town on the border of China and Hongkong.

It was learned that beginning Tuesday, workmen of the FWD and China Light and Power will erect poles and wiring along the street.

It was learned that the Chinese authorities are also planning to supply power from Shum Chun to the Chinese side of the main street.

The street, re-surfacing of which caused a stir recently, has never had lighting before.

Revolt Plot Discovered In Sinkiang

Peking, Sept. 2. Moslem inhabitants of China's vast north-west province of Sinkiang had plotted a Hungarian-style revolt against the Communist authorities, it was revealed today.

But the Chinese Communists had discovered it and frustrated it.

Sinkiang borders Tibet. The revolt plot was disclosed in a magazine report written by a leading Communist Party secretary in the area.

The rebels were described only as "local chauvinists". The report said they:

- Opposed socialism.
- Wanted to establish an autonomous republic.
- Tried to exclude Chinese from the region.
- Plotted a Hungarian-style revolt.

VICTORY

The Communist authorities in the province claimed "a great victory" in suppressing the "local chauvinists".

The national movement by the chauvinists started at the end of 1957.

Last January it was officially reported that eight "local chauvinists" and one "counter-revolutionary" had been suspended from posts as deputies to the Sinkiang People's Congress.

INDIVIDUALISM

The article said the anti-chauvinist drive revealed several counter-revolutionaries and other people, outside the law. Rightist, conservative, bourgeois, individualism and other bad traits amongst officials of the national minorities were criticised.

Rebel Forces In Laos Launch Big Offensive

Vientiane, Sept. 2. Rebel forces in Laos have launched a large-scale offensive north of Sam Neua aimed at capturing the town, it was reported here tonight. The offensive reportedly extended along "the entire northern sector."

After crossing the Nam Ma river, rebel forces captured the royal Laotian army posts at Xieng Kho and Sop Sao. The garrisons were driven into the interior of Sam Neua Province, according to reports here.

The rebel objective, military sources here said, is to establish the Pathet Lao (Laotian Communists) in control of Sam Neua. The rebel forces would then withdraw from Sam Neua before the arrival of the United Nations observers, it was added.

And radio communication between detachments of the Royal Laotian army and general headquarters was blamed for the absence of military communications.

The northeast province of Sam Neua were expected to swing west and take Sam Neua town. The Communists had taken five army posts along the River Ma, near the North Vietnam border, in a concerted attack which began on Sunday, he said in an interview.

The General said his reports showed there were now 6,500 Communists fighting in different parts of Laos.

In their attack on the principal Laotian fortress at Muong Het, the Communist forces were covered by artillery fire from Ban Da, near Xieng Khoang in North Vietnam, he said.

Howitzers with an eight-mile range were used to bombard the fortress, which was only six miles from the frontier, the General added.

Brigadier-General Ouan Rattikone, Commander of the Laotian army, said today an estimated force of 3,500 North Vietnam troops and Pathet Lao rebels moving southwards in

CHINA SENDS New Map To India

New Delhi, Sept. 2. China has sent the Indian Government a new map of Chinese territory affirming that this map was the only one they recognised, a reliable source said here today.

The map was identical with an earlier Chinese map, and showed as belonging to China large sections of the North East Frontier Agency (the northern part of Assam) of the province of Ladakh (north-eastern part of Kashmir) and of the Himalayan border states of Bhutan, Sikkim and Nepal, the source said.

The Chinese Government had handed the map to the Indian Ambassador in Peking, who had forwarded it to the Indian Foreign Office, the source added.

PATROL DOUBLED
Meanwhile the police patrol on the border of Ladakh where Chinese Communists have made incursions is being doubled, official sources said here.

Reinforcements are understood to be already on the way to the border area. New border posts are to be established and existing posts strengthened.

The sources said the police had been told to avoid skirmishes with the Chinese and that no direct contact should be encouraged or maintained.—AFP & Reuter.

MISSING BOY: NO TRACE

No trace has been found of the missing boy, Geoffrey Bourne, but the search is still continuing, said a Government spokesman late this morning. It was now thought that the boy—old fall into the nullah, he added.

Geoffrey, 8, son of Mr C. A. Bourne, Warrant Officer Class I, REME, and Mrs. Bourne, of Durham Court, Kowloon, was reported missing at about 4.30 p.m. yesterday.

He was last seen playing on the hillside near a stream in Kowloon-Tung in the afternoon. A pair of shoes and a mackintosh belonging to the missing boy were found near a nullah not far from his home in the course of the search yesterday.

GOVERNOR DISCUSSING HONGKONG'S PROBLEMS WITH COLONIAL OFFICE

By COLIN RICKARDS

London, Sept. 2.

The Governor of Hongkong, Sir Robert Black said today that he would have more talks with Colonial Office officials about the Colony's problems before he returns to Hongkong at the end of his leave.

COLONY'S NEW ARMS: FIRST APPEARANCE

Hongkong's new armorial bearings, granted by the Queen and presented to the Colony and presented to the Duke of Edinburgh during his visit here in March, appeared for the first time on Government documents this week.

The two reports to carry them were tabled at yesterday's meeting of the Legislative Council.

The reports were of the Hongkong Housing Authority, April, 1955 to March 1957, and of the Custodian of Enemy Property, 1955-59.

"I have already had some discussions on the economic development of the Colony and its problems of refugees, floods, and rehousing, and these will be carried on later in September," Sir Robert told me from his country home in Surrey today.

Sir Robert who is at present on holiday, had just returned with his family from Norway. Later they will visit relatives in Scotland and west of England.

EXHIBITION
The "See How They Live" exhibition—a typical Hongkong refugee settlement reconstructed in the Churchyard of St Martin-in-the-Field Church in Trafalgar Square—has been visited so far by more than 15,000 people.

Next week, Sir Robert and Lady Black will be among the visitors.

Seventeen-Year-Old 'Dracula'

New York, Sept. 2. A frail 17-year-old boy, who calls himself "Dracula", admitted today that he was responsible for the murder of two 16-year-old boys here during the night of Saturday Sunday.

Salvatore Aaron, who was arrested this morning along with two other young suspects, was found carrying the knife used in the killing. Except for trying to get rid of the knife at the time of his arrest, Aaron was quick to admit, even boast, that he had committed the double murder.

Head of a teenage gang, Aaron, who took the name of "Dracula" from the slim monster of the same name, had led the killing of Robert Young and Anthony Kresinski. He gave no clear reason for killing the boys, who did not belong to any gang. "In the way you're looking for" Aaron admitted, with some arrogance, to the police, who had sent out 25,000 men in search of the boys' murderer.

"I don't care if I burn," he said, referring to the electric chair used for capital punishment. "My mother could watch me."—AFP.

Singapore Threat To Merge With Indonesia

Kuala Lumpur, Sept. 2. Singapore "will go it alone" or may seek a merger with Indonesia if the Malayan Government continues to reject Singapore's overtures for a political and economic fusion with the Federation.

Plenty For Man To Learn From Animals

York, England, Sept. 2. Sir James Gray, Professor of Zoology at Cambridge University, said here last night that man has a great deal to learn from animals.

Sir James was giving the presidential address to the 121st annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which opened here last night. He said that the discoveries of modern science had frightened mankind and far too many people were looking askance at science and wondering where it was leading.

DANGER

In the repercussions of modern science on international relationships, there would always be potential danger until individual nations thought in terms of the welfare of humanity as a whole.

The meeting, which is being attended by over 2,500 scientists from Britain and overseas, will last for a week and hold discussions on a wide variety of subjects. The emphasis is on the promotion of a better understanding of the impact of science through its implications on society as a whole.—Chinnell Special.

Pilot Takes Own Life

North Hollywood, Sept. 2.

An airline pilot, grounded because of illness, took his own life today by shooting himself in the mouth with a shotgun, police reported.

The correspondent pointed out that from his "observations" made in Singapore, the Republic of Indonesia would be prepared to "replace" the Federation, if necessary.

"If this happens, Singapore will not beg for a merger with the Federation but would walk with its head high and wait for the Federation to make the next move."

"This appears to be the surprising master move that the PAP (People's Action Party) is hoping to spring on the Federation. Either allow us to merge with you or we align ourselves more closely with Indonesia."

The dispatch continued that merger with Indonesia would boost Singapore's entrepot trade.

"One of the reasons why the Singapore Government is extremely friendly with the Indonesian Government is because of this proposed merger in the cultural and trade fields," the Post added.

The Post, however, conceded that the prospects of closer alignment between Singapore and the Federation appeared "slim" in view of the cultural and friendship treaty signed between Malaya and Indonesia recently.—UPL

SHE TELLS HOW SON VANISHED

St Albans, Sept. 2. A mother told a coroner's court here how her eight-year-old son sank "lower and lower" into a corn bin—despite all her efforts—and eventually disappeared under the corn.

Mrs. Maud Ellen Hudgell, a widow, of Southend Farm, Redburn, Herts., said she heard her son John screaming, and found him up to his armpits in the bin while corn was pouring in. She stopped the flow of corn and sent for help.

INQUISITIVE

"I could just get my hands under my son's arms to try and pull him clear, but he sank lower and lower and disappeared into the corn," she said.

Children had played at the bin "hundreds of times," she added.

After a jury returned a verdict of misadventure, the coroner said the accident showed how necessary it was to keep children away from places where their inquisitive minds would take them into danger.—China Mail Special.

General Carlos Toranzo Montero has been relieved of his post as Commander-in-Chief of the Argentine Army. It was announced today by the War Minister, General Elvio Ayala.

No Barn Dance For Princess

Brisbane, Sept. 2. Princess Alexandra today left Rockhampton by air for Bundaberg, beginning another 12-hour day crowded with engagements. From Bundaberg, she drives to Maryborough where she will stay the night.

At a charity ball in Rockhampton last night, Royal tour officials cut from the programme a progressive barn dance which, they said, would not please the Princess.

They said the hall was too crowded—800 people attended, although only 600 were invited. In her first dance, with the

21 Indicted In Big US Narcotics Crackdown

Washington, Sept. 2. The Justice Department announced tonight that a coast-to-coast narcotics ring reaching into the Chicago Police Force had been smashed with the indictment of 21 persons.

The department said a Federal Grand Jury at Chicago had returned two indictments in the crackdown. The first named 13 defendants, including three Chicago policemen recently transferred from the city's narcotics squad.

The second indictment, it said, named a former federal narcotics agent and eight others as defendants.

The Chicago policemen, who still are on the force, were identified as Haselden R. Teller, Miles J. Cooperman and Richard E. Austin.

The former Federal Narcotics Bureau agent was listed as Edward Richardson Gayles. He was said to have been with the Treasury from Nov. 20, 1950, until Dec. 5, 1952.

The defendants were charged with conspiracy to violate the Federal narcotics laws. The

Radioactive Isotope Lost And Found

London, Sept. 2. An iridium radioactive isotope lost from a lorry was recovered today after a Wealdstone woman notified the police she had found it on the road outside her home.

Mrs Lily Lawrence said she picked up the orange-coloured metal container and put it in her back garden, thinking it was scrap.

She called the police after hearing radio broadcasts warning that the isotope could be highly dangerous if its container were damaged.

Five children had been playing with the container.

More than a dozen neighbours and their children who examined the container were being medically examined today by a specialist—China Mail Special.

BIG WELCOME IN PARIS

Paris, Sept. 2. President Eisenhower, who was said to speak only "Kansas French," tonight found four words to win the hearts of Parisiennes—"Je vous aime tous" (I love you all).

He said this at the end of his first day's visit to Paris to a wildly cheering throng after driving from the Elysee Palace along the broad Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe to pay simple homage to the dead of two world wars at the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier.

Thousands of Parisians had gathered along the Champs Elysees hours before the historic ceremony at which the two comrades in arms in the last world war once again remembered those who fought under them and laid down their lives.

Wrath Laying

Paris and millions of viewers throughout Europe on the Eurovision network acclaimed the first State drive here by an American President since President Woodrow Wilson came in 1919 for the peace treaty negotiations.

Mr Eisenhower placed a large wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and rekindled the flame which burns night and day above the tomb.

Both Presidents signed the Golden Book of distinguished visitors and statesmen who have performed the ceremony.

General de Gaulle next introduced Mr Eisenhower to senior French service officers, many of whom had served under him in North Africa and Europe.

Mr Eisenhower spoke a few words to each of his former wartime colleagues then moved on to greet veterans from two world wars.

The two Presidents then drove off the city hall square, which had been jammed with Parisians for many hours. The presidential motorcade was in the form of a Cross of Lorraine, the symbol of General de Gaulle's wartime "Free French."

M. Debre and senior government and city officials preceded the two heads of State on a gaily beflagged dais in front of the city hall.

Huge Crowd

General de Gaulle told the huge crowd in front of the city hall that France and Paris once again welcomed President Eisenhower.

"You are here at a time when France and America have again felt the need of strengthening the links that bind them together," he said.—Reuter.

President de Gaulle ended his speech with the words: "Everything has gone very well between us."

President Eisenhower in reply said: "When the heart is full the tongue is very likely to stumble. 'Should I try to express you I say the true feeling, the true sentiments that inspire me, I should be unable to speak at all.'"

Mr Eisenhower said he could only say that over the years "this city, this country has become, like it has for almost every American, something very dear, something very real and truly a part of the kind of the world in which we want to live."

President Eisenhower said: "America cherishes the friendship, the loyal support, the loyal co-operative efforts that have always been here and which she needs from France."

Mr Eisenhower said his friendship with General de Gaulle had grown and developed since their first meeting in Algiers in 1942.

Path To Peace

He said he was pleased to join General de Gaulle in his task of finding a path to the peace and security of the world so that your children, your grandchildren, may live in all parts of the world in freedom.

Mr Eisenhower said: "People that love liberty will never let it slip by them in neglect. It is indeed by laying in French: 'I love you all.'"

A great roar of pleasure went up from the massed crowds at these words.—Reuter.

Rossellini, Bergman Battle Continues

Rome, Sept. 2. Roberto Rossellini today sought legal backing for his refusal to return his three children to their mother, Ingrid Bergman.

It was the boldest move yet in the bitter fight between the two over custody of their children. Miss Bergman had sent Roberto, 9, and the twins Isotta and Isabella, 6, to spend a two-month summer vacation with their father in Italy under a court ruling giving her temporary custody.

Rossellini was to send the youngsters back to their mother on August 26, a week ago. Instead, he kept them at his villa near Rome and appealed to a Rome Court to revoke the custody order to let the children live with him.

There appeared nothing Miss Bergman could do to get the children back until the court hands down another ruling, which may take weeks.

There was doubt she would return to Italy to try and get the children back herself in out-of-court action.—UPI.

Bombs Thrown As Renewed Violence Erupts In Calcutta

Calcutta, Sept. 2. Renewed violence erupted here shortly after dusk tonight as demonstrators protesting against the West Bengal Government's food policies attacked police with bombs and bricks.

The police countered with a baton charge and later fired tear gas shells to disperse the demonstrators.

There was no report of casualties.

DEATH TOLL

Meanwhile the death toll from similar disturbances yesterday rose to 12 tonight when five of 83 rioters wounded by police bullets died of their wounds. Six were killed outright yesterday. At least 100 policemen were injured.

Following organisations have formed a "price increase and famine resistance committee" which is directing the "law violation" programme.

Tonight's main clash occurred at Bowrah Maidan, one of several centres near here which reported incidents after a relatively calm day.

At Dum Dum, a state transport kiosk was set on fire and a bomb was hurled at a passenger station. It failed to explode.

Police vans patrolling the streets of Calcutta and surrounding areas were pelted with stones.

Police opened fire on rioting crowds in seven localities in Calcutta today. The crowds were said to have attacked vehicles, including police vans, and smashed street lights.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.—Reuter.

Bombing Escape

Queen Sends Message To Royal Couple

London, Sept. 2. Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mother have sent messages to King Norodom Suramarit of Cambodia congratulating him and his wife on their escape when a bomb disguised as a parcel exploded in their Royal palace on August 31.

A British Foreign Office spokesman told his press conference that Britain had received a report from Cambodia about the incident.

The messages also conveyed condolences about the death of Prince Vikrinvir, the King's personal valet, who was killed in the explosion.—Reuter.

SINGAPORE NIGHTCLUBS' BAND TROUBLE

Singapore, Sept. 2. Hotels and nightclubs in this once gay and lively city have all but given up efforts to import foreign bands.

Immigration regulations provide that importers of foreign musicians must hire an equal number of local musicians.

An immigration spokesman said some nightclubs had complied with "the letter of the law" but "by no means with the spirit of it." He said they had hired some third-rate musicians as "dummies" on the bandstand in order to comply with the immigration regulations. These "dummies" were paid as little as $500 (US$200) a month.

INEPT ENTERTAINERS

The President of the Singapore Musicians Union, Benny Kleinman, however, expressed surprise at the immigration spokesman's statement. He said: "As far as I know, this sort of thing has never happened. The nightclubs have always played ball with the union."

Kleinman conceded that local boys were, in the main, inept as entertainers. He said: "What the public want is entertainment. And what they want the nightclubs must provide—or close down."

Another immigration regulation, which has baffled nightclubs, is that singers and other cabinet performers must not sit with patrons, even outside their working hours.—UPI.

1,300 mph Escape Capsule

Fort Worth, Sept. 2. The company that makes the world's fastest bomber disclosed today that it is testing a capsule it expects to enable a crewman to escape from a plane going 1,300 miles an hour and to survive after he reaches land or water safely.

The company is Convair division of General Dynamics Corp., which makes the B-58 "Hustler" bomber. The B-58's speed is believed to exceed 1,300 miles an hour and the escape capsule was designed for it by Stanley Aviation Corp. of Denver, Colorado.

The speed and operational altitude of the B-58 makes it extremely hard for enemy forces to shoot it down. They now have to wear elaborate pressure suits and have kits of survival equipment.

Frank W. Davis, manager of Convair's Fort Worth plant, said that "if the capsules meet his expectations, crews can now sit in 'shirt-sleeve comfort' both in planes and ready rooms."

TRIGGER MECHANISM

In practice, each crewman would sit inside an open capsule. If it became necessary for him to escape, he would trigger the capsule's mechanism.

The capsule would close about the airman, who would then put the ejection mechanism into operation. After the airman cleared the plane, the capsule in his capsule, a parachute would open, dropping him to land or water.

Equipment inside the capsule would provide the downed man with the means of survival until a rescue team could deliver a call from the capsule's self-contained radio.—UPI.

Rickshaws Will Disappear From Macao

Macao, Sept. 3. When the last of the present rickshaw pullers retire, this old Oriental vehicle will be banned from the streets of Macao.

In fact the Urban Council will not issue any more licenses for rickshaws except to the last six rickshaw pullers who adamantly refused to change their way of living.

The out-going rickshaws gave place to a more modern three-wheeled "pedicabs". Although it is considered the scourge of the local traffic because of its clumsiness, the rickshaw has become very popular among residents and visitors alike.—AFP.

K's Demand For Peaceful Co-Existence

New York, Sept. 2. Mr Nikita Khrushchev said in an article published here today that peaceful co-existence between East and West was neither a fraud nor a trap but the only alternative to history's most destructive war.

The 7,000-word article appeared in the influential magazine Foreign Affairs Quarterly. The Soviet Prime Minister is due to begin a visit to the United States on September 15.

In his first article ever published in a Western magazine, Mr Khrushchev asserted: "Communism will ultimately be victorious throughout the world... but when we say that in the competition between the two systems, the capitalist and the socialist, our system will win, this does not mean of course that we shall achieve victory by interfering in the internal affairs of the capitalist countries."

"Our confidence in the victory of Communism is of a different kind," Mr Khrushchev said. "It is based on a knowledge of the laws governing the development of society just as in its time capitalism was the more progressive system took the place of feudalism, so will capitalism be inevitably superseded by Communism—the more progressive and more suitable social system."

Liquidation

On Germany, Mr Khrushchev wrote: "We regard the liquidation of the consequence of World War II and the conclusion of a peace treaty with the two German states as the question of questions."

"Indeed 14 years have already passed since the war ended, but the German people are still without a peace treaty," the Russian leader said.

"The delay has afforded wide scope for renewed activities of the West German militarists. They have already proclaimed their aggressive plans, laying claim to lands in Poland and Czechoslovakia."

"The lessons of history should not be ignored. To do so often ends in tragedy."

Mr Khrushchev went on: "It has shown that the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance is being gradually converted into an instrument of the German militarists, which makes it easier for them to carry out aggressive plans."

"It is not at all impossible, therefore, that Western Germany, taking advantage of her position in the North Atlantic Alliance, might provoke hostilities in order to draw her Allies into it and plunge the whole world into the chaos of a devastating war."

Timely

"All this indicates how timely and realistic are the proposals of the Soviet Government for the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany and for bringing the situation in West Berlin back to normal."

"It now seems that no reformed leader in the West is inclined any longer to advance the unrealistic demands for the so-called reunion of Germany before the conclusion of a peace treaty... we should start from the obvious fact that two German states exist, and that the Germans themselves must decide how they want to live."

"I am convinced that Germany will be united sooner or later. However, before this moment comes—and no one can foresee when it will come—no attempt should be made to interfere from outside in this internal process, to sustain the state of war which is fraught with many grave dangers and surprises for peace in Europe and throughout the world."

Rejected

On West Berlin he said: "We resolutely reject any attempt to subscribe to the Soviet Union the intention of seizing West Berlin and transferring upon the right of the population in this part of the city to preserve its present way of life."

"We, as well as the West stand for the independence of the existing way of life there."

Mr Khrushchev said the recent Geneva conference of Big Four Foreign Ministers brought the positions of the two sides closer together.

"At the same time, we will have substantial differences on a number of questions. I am deeply convinced that they are not fundamental differences on which agreement is impossible," he added.

The Premier urged extensive and unrestricted international trade as a key to peaceful co-existence. "However, if both sides want to improve relations, all barriers to international trade must be removed."

Resolution

Touching on the United States congressional resolution on liberating captive nations—which was discussed as a sore point during Vice-President Richard Nixon's tour of Russia in July—Mr Khrushchev said: "I would not be telling the full truth if I did not say that the adoption of this ill-starred resolution was regarded by the Soviet people as an act of provocation. Personally I agree with this appraisal."

He concluded by saying: "The Soviet people have stated and declared again that they do not want war."

"If the Soviet Union and the countries friendly to it are not attacked, we shall never use any weapons either against the United States or against any other countries."

"We do not want any horrors of war, destruction, suffering and death for ourselves or for any other people. We want peace because we fear anyone. Together with our friends, we are united and stronger than ever."

Prevent War

"But precisely because of that do we say that war can and should be prevented. Precisely because we want to rid mankind of war we urge the Western powers to peace and lofty competition."

"We say to all: let us prove to each other the advantages of one's own system not with fire but by war, but by peaceful economic competition in conditions of peaceful co-existence."—Reuter.

Catholic Bishops Backed Hitler

Chicago, Sept. 2. A Loyola University sociologist said today that Roman Catholic bishops in Germany backed Adolf Hitler in World War II.

Dr Gordon Zahn said the bishops "who had been widely and justly acclaimed for their heroic opposition to National Socialism" nevertheless readily supported Hitler's wars, including his conquest of Poland.

Zahn, addressing the annual convention of the American Catholic Sociological Society at Mundelein College, blamers the German Catholic press for failing to point out moral issues behind Hitler's aggressions.

RESISTANCE

He said the Catholic press in Germany had to keep in mind the power of the Nazi censors to close down newspapers which showed resistance to the party.

Many Catholic papers were closed down, he said, but those that continued to publish had to pay the price of following the Nazi line.

"This price may be viewed as nothing other than betrayal of the nature of the religious press and its functions and obligations," he said.

Zahn recently spent a year in Germany on a Fulbright scholarship to conduct his study of the Catholic Press there during the war.—UPI.

Termites Win

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 2. Termites took the first round yesterday in a battle with insect exterminator Walter Gherke.

Gherke crawled under a porch to dispose of the termites, and the porch, weakened by the little pests, collapsed, burying Gherke under a half ton of concrete.

He escaped with only minor bruises.—UPI.

Khrushchev's visit gives America a split mind...

I RESUME at the old stand. From here it seems that this month will shake or make the world. President Eisenhower, ruddy, bright-eyed, full of bounce, has left on his new crusade in Europe.

But I find New Yorkers and Americans generally in a strange mood. They are obsessed by the forthcoming Khrushchev visit to such an extent that their personality is split right down the middle. Shall they display the wonders of the New World, play the familiar huckster role, break records in show-off-manship, or give Khrushchev the brush-off?

Some people have positive views. I walked down Park Avenue the other night past the Russian United Nations headquarters at 61st Street. The Hungarians were demonstrating noisily, brandishing placards marked, in red for blood, "Keep Khrushchev the killer away from here. He said he'd bury us — we will bury him. Stay in Moscow, mass murderer."

The cops, bored and swinging their night sticks, nonchalantly looked on and chewed gum. Now and again a sergeant would say: "Keep moving. Let's roll. Take it easy, fellers."

The poison

One of the pickets said to me: "Wait till Khrushchev gets here. We'll block the entire Avenue, we will burn down the place."

They will do nothing of the sort — the police will see to that — but anyone who thinks there won't be trouble during the Khrushchev visit is daft.

Vice-President Richard Nixon said the other evening: "It's the security business which is on my mind night and day."

It is not so much the pickets representing the so-called captive nations that Washington is worried about; but the attempt to whip up the country into blazing hostility to the visit by some sections of the Press, the Church, and radio.

Every day Mr. Reuben Maury, the chief editorial writer of America's biggest newspaper, the New York Daily News, spreads the poison for 6,000,000 readers: "Khrushchev, the bloody-handed bandit. Let our gangsters meet this gangster. No welcome for this bum. Murderer, keep out."

DON IDDON'S DIARY

The campaign has become frenzied — "Let's speed the parting guest with Bronx cheers, verbal mud-balls, and cocked snooks."

Every day Mr. David Lawrence, who owns the U.S. News and World Report, flatly opposes the trip. There are suggestions that the public dress in mourning during the visit, remain indoors, or keep absolutely silent as Khrushchev passes.

'Rotten eggs'

There are suggestions that he be deluged with rotten eggs and vegetables, booed, hissed, and barracked.

Most of the Roman Catholic Church groups are dead set against the visit. The American Legion is opposed to the visit. Organized Labour, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and the American Federation of Labour don't want him and won't greet him.

The news magazines, Time and Newsweek, are cool. The Hearst Press, which is the biggest chain of newspapers in this country, while running a detached series of articles by its boss, William Randolph Hearst, Jr., is permitting its star columnist, the embittered Westbrook Pegler, who went to Moscow with Nixon, to describe the Russian capital as "A hell hole, a vast slum" and the Russians as little better than vermin.

Pegler stayed at the same hotel in Moscow as I did — the Ukraina. He is distorting the facts, sneering and scoffing at a warm-hearted, generous people.

Tens of millions of Americans are reading Pegler's lists of lies as he is syndicated in many newspapers outside the Hearst chain, and his following is vast.

Repeated

The other day he expressed surprise that Khrushchev hadn't arranged for the Nixon plane to crash and wipe out the Vice-President of the United States and his party, and, sure enough, within a day or two I heard the same nonsense repeated in Westampton, Long Island, where I have been on holiday. If the Khrushchev trip is marked by violent incident or worse, then the mass-circulation American Press will have to shoulder some of the blame. They are trying to light a bonfire of hysteria here.

The more restrained newspapers, and notably the authoritative New York Times, the New York Herald Tribune, and the Washington Post, are urging courtesy and at least a modicum of hospitality.

"Close the ranks behind the President," they suggest mildly, while the gutter Press shouts for mud and hints at blood.

I find the American atmosphere explosive and can only hope there will be some tranquility and calm before Mr. Khrushchev gets here.

The programme as announced won't allow the man to see much of America, as he is spending half his time in Washington, the capital. I only hope, when the President wants to show him the average citizens' houses, Khrushchev doesn't say: "I would like to see the theatres of the capital."

There is only one theatre in Washington. It is frequently closed, and until recently negroes were barred from entering it. There are 40 in Moscow.

Finally, I hope the loquacious guides — what a strange choice Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, bitterly anti-Russian, is as chief guide — won't hold forth too much about freedom because Khrushchev might ask to go to Little Rock or, worse, to the Deep Dark South of Mississippi, Georgia, and Alabama.

Up to Ike

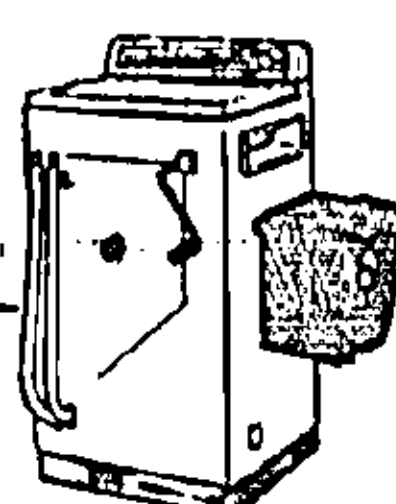

There is, fortunately, some time to go before the big event. The President's mission, for which his charm, dexterity, and vast European experience superbly equip him, may create a better climate for the Khrushchev visit. It could do so.

We are living in a peculiar political period, an era of great journeying, in which Vice-President Nixon won vast support in Pittsburgh by appearing in Poland, and in which Senator Hubert Humphrey enhanced his chances for the Presidential nomination in Chicago by conferring with Khrushchev for eight hours in the Kremlin. A lot depends on Ike.

FORTUNE AWAITS A SOHO CROOK'S SON

London.

THE Soho real estate empire of Freddy Roberts, self-styled "King of the Crooks" who was killed in a car crash last year is up for sale.

But lawyers cannot contact the man who will benefit from the sale of the HK$940,000 worth of property.

He is Roberts' son, Graham, a 28-year-old major in the United States Air Force.

Mr. H. R. Dean, manager of the Freddy Roberts' estate company told me at the company's office in Gerrard Street, Soho: "Major Roberts has not been in England since he returned for his father's funeral."

"He has issued only one instruction to the solicitors administering the estate: 'Sell everything.'

"Since then he has refused to answer letters or cables and his present address is not known."

In his will Freddy Roberts, who was 70 when he died, stated that he wished his business, "Roberts Estates, Ltd.," to be carried on.

He said if his son could be "encited to return to London" he was to be appointed "joint owner of all" with Mrs Vella

By a Special Correspondent

Dawson—Vella Dawes, the blonde model he planned to marry on his 80th birthday. Mrs Dawes, who changed her name to Roberts by deed poll shortly after Freddy's death, is living at his home in Park Lane.

No part

"But," says Mr Dean, "he has taken no part in his business." Freddy Roberts, who sometimes called himself "Freddy Ford," was killed on the Winchester by-pass in May last year as he drove in his HK$80,000 Daimler convertible.

A self-confessed con. man and safe-breaker, he had also been a wrestler, a boxer and a racing driver.

He spent 30 years of his life in jail before he decided that crime did not pay—and settled down to build the real-estate business that made his fortune.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

ONE of the disadvantages of the Blackwood convention is that the defender has a chance to double the Blackwood response to call for a lead against the eventual slam contract.

East's double of five hearts is a bad example of this type double because it is overruled against him.

Now South went into executive session with himself. He had to get back to his own hand to ruff his last club. East had doubled five hearts for a lead and West had led another suit. Maybe West just wanted to lead a trump or maybe West just didn't have a heart to lead.

South decided not to give West a chance to trump and returned to his hand with a spade. Now he ruffed his last club in dummy, came back to his hand with another spade and spread his hand.

SOME 'CALORIE-LOW' FOODS AREN'T

By WILLIAM R. TEAGUE

FAD diets often hail cottage cheese as a girl's best friend. Fact is, it can be a dieter's worst enemy.

This is not to brand cottage cheese as a natural enemy of your figure. Any doctor will tell you it's a health food, rich in body-building elements and sometimes recommended for its laxative effect on ulcers.

But if you're trying to trim 10 pounds, measure your cottage cheese as carefully as you would your waistline.

A cupful is about 200 calories. It's common to combine dietary discipline with spiritual obligation, usually by having a "light lunch." Ordinarily at our house, this would mean a bunch of lettuce leaves and a big glass of cottage cheese—a sacrifice known as the "diet method" of trimming seven pounds in seven days.

The family doctor charged that his calorie chart persuaded us to give up cottage cheese instead.

Now light lunch is half a grapefruit, a cup of vegetable soup, half a cup of tuna with lemon juice, half a tomato, a stalk of celery, and half a cup of Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, or asparagus tips.

That's only about 240 calories, still below the count for a cup of cottage cheese. If you don't like fish, substitute a roast chicken leg or a small portion of round steak.

Either way, it's a well-balanced meal and you sacrifice only bread, which you would have given up anyway under the cottage cheese method.

It's easy to have low-calorie meals at home, where you are in charge. But be on guard after you leave your front door.

Shopping centre soda fountains and downtown cafeterias are almost diabolical. A popular forty-cent special may have a generous dipper of cottage cheese, two pencil halves, three prunes, topped with a cherry and served with crackers.

Looks light. Dainty, inexpensive and inviting.

Be wary. Stop. Look. Count calories. The cheese is about 150, the peach 75, prunes 75. And even if you don't count the cherry, that little package of crackers will add 40. That's 340 calories and you'll still be hungry, when you finish.

Reconsider. By-pass the "light" salad, and (counting as you go) order something like this:

A slice of lean roast beef (85), quarter head of lettuce (15), half a cup of green beans or (eggplant) (25), celery hearts (15), half a cup of carrots, turnips or cabbage (35), hot tea with one sugar (25). That's only 200 calories.

If you feel daring, add a small muffin and a pat of butter, and you'll have only 300. If you like, substitute a roast chicken leg or any lean meat for the beef.

You will have a nutritious, satisfying meal that will be low enough for a 1,000-calorie diet.

Let's Do It The Dior Style

By VERONICA PAPWORTH

PUNCH drunk and dizzy as we are with take-over bids to the right and left of us — it only needed a denial from M. Boussac that the House of Dior was for sale to set the fashion world by the ears.

Everybody seems to be buying everybody else up over here. No wonder the dread hand has spread to that city of individualists — Paris.

Rumours that Dior is to be "taken over" have been ringing round the hot, scented salons for months. "By Cloré," said some, and managed to make it sound like an outfit.

By Americans, said others, which seems far more likely.

For my guess is that these rumours are founded on far more than the fact that M. Boussac recently had dinner with the owner of Saks — the New York Fifth Avenue store.

But he didn't.

The dressmaking side of the fabulous Dior empire is no more than the tail that wags the dog.

What counts is that the name "Dior" sells shoes, stockings, gloves, corsets, sweaters, hats and perfume everywhere.

It looks like selling itself to one of those astronomical figures the newspapers love so dearly.

I only hope they don't play this one down.

Let's keep it on the heavily perfumed, looking-glass lined, plush, milky, orchidaceous level where a few noughts at the end are neither here nor there.

That's the way Dior would have loved it!

Just about everyone uses lead pencils, but the people who make them fear that most persons do not know how to sharpen pencils properly.

The Lead Pencil Manufacturers' Association recommends using a sharpener, not a knife or your teeth. Grasp the pencil with thumb, index and middle finger. Feed it into sharpener with a light pressure, turning the crank evenly and briskly. Don't hurry — and don't push. Allow the pencil to roll in your fingers to ensure a tapered lead.

"RISOTTO" is a very appetising way of using rice," observed the Chef. "It originated in Italy and has a personality! Use it in any form for lunch or dinner and if there's any left-over, brown it lightly in a little fat like an omelette."

Risotto: Peel and slice 1 medium-sized onion. Slow-fry in 4 tbs. cooking oil. Then add 3 tbs. butter or margarine. When melted stir in 2 c. raw rice. Slow-fry until it is yellowed, stirring constantly.

Add 4 c. water and 4 bouillon cubes, or use 1 qt. soup stock made from chicken, turkey bones or meat bones. Bring to a boil. Cover and cook slowly about 25 min. or until the rice is tender and the water is absorbed. Serve very hot. Pass grated Parmesan cheese.

Chicken or Turkey Risotto: Follow the recipe for plain risotto, adding after 30 min. 2 c. chopped turkey or chicken meat. If desired, chopped cooked chicken or turkey giblets may be added or used instead.

Luncheon Meat Risotto: Make plain risotto. Ten min. before

It will be done, stir in 1 1/2 c. small-diced luncheon meat which has been slightly browned in a little butter or margarine.

Clam Risotto: Make plain risotto, but use only 3 c. water. After 20 min. add 2 (10 oz.) cans chopped clams.

EYE SPY

THE only spy I ever met was short, plump, and far from pretty. But fiction — and the fashion trade — think otherwise. And so the beautiful Spy Look has been launched for autumn in London.

The windswept, casual girl is finished. In her place comes the sophisticated lady with the Make-Up make-up, and a new technique for painting her face. The most salient point about the new winter woman is her eyes — enormous and accentuated, against a pallid face.

The dark-eyed look is back again, easily achieved by pencilling a side-flick at the outer corner of your eye. The eyelids are now carefully outlined with black pencil at the base of the lashes. If you want to try this effect, strike a match and hastily sweep it down into an old cosmetic jar, to make an emergency eye-pencil.

White

That white lipstick which was used for summer make-up now highlights the eyes. Smoothed in underneath, it fades out tell-tale smudges and hollows, the trophies from too many late nights. Used under the eyebrows, it gives you a wide-awake look — even when you're feeling half asleep.

Coloured mascara is more chic than plain black. Blue lashes, discreetly painted, can make grey eyes appear blue, or intensify blue eyes. If your lashes are naturally black, try using brown mascara for a change, to give your eyes a softer look. To give your eyes a softer look, achieve an almost oriental slant.

Red

Lipstick colours have switched to dark, plummy shades such as aubergine or ember red. A good lipstick to go with any and every colour you are likely to wear is "Wear Withall Red", a bold, clear shade.

Darker lips mean that more attention must be paid to their outline. Now you should start using a lip-brush — a fine paintbrush with the bristles cropped to ideal — to paint in a perfect outline the way they do at film studios.

A too-pale make-up with accented eyes and lips can give you the Sad Clown look. So unless your skin is naturally chalk-white — and whose isn't? — stick to a tinted foundation; pink-toned for a pale skin, creamy for a sallow one.

Use two coats of powder. First your usual shade, then one at least a tone lighter, to give your skin a transparent look. Apply the powder lavishly, and dust off the excess with a baby's hairbrush.

Swirled

Hair goes up — the longer, lengthier coiffures are swirled round the head into a French knot, the more up-to-date version of the chignon, which is sleekly wrapped across the forehead in front and tucked into a sausage shape from the crown to the nape of the neck at the back.

If you find this hairstyle too unkind, soften the effect with a fringe, brushed sideways across your forehead from a side parting.

Slick, sleek hairdos often need a lacquer to keep them under control. But if you dislike the sticky effect of the ordinary hair-spray, look out for a new three-in-one product called Hi-Styler. It keeps the hair in place and can be used at the same time as a setting lotion. And it's a bonus — it contains a dust-repellent to ensure your hair remains glossy.

Gaudy

Beauty expert Helena Rubinstein, just back from Russia, says that the women in Moscow are crazy about nail varnish and choose it in the gaudiest shades.

Nail lacquers are making a come-back in England, too, especially since one large manufacturer has introduced a range of vivid colours — gold, blue and green are just three samples.

The mere adventurous teenagers are painting each nail a different colour, but some of the shades, notably Pink Topaz and Sea Spray, can look wonderful for evening wear. The same firm have also brought out a seven-colour eye pencil which unscrews in sections to release the individual shades.

The Small Parade

—Hiawatha's Arrangements Delight Teddy—

By MAX TRELL

"NOW what I'd like," said Teddy, the Shadow Bear, to Knarf, the Shuff and Hiawatha, the Small — Sized Wooden Indian, "is a parade. I'd like a parade with soldiers and flags and a band and horses and airplanes and — lions and tigers and — just a great big parade!"

"But, Teddy! You can't have a parade in a house!" said Knarf.

"Can't I?" asked Teddy in a disappointed voice.

Teddy looked at Hiawatha and waited for him to say something.

Bad Idea

"It's a very bad idea," said Hiawatha, shaking his head. "And I don't think you'd like it anyway. But as long as I'm not doing anything, I'll go and talk to somebody and see what I can do. But I don't think I can do anything."

And with that, Hiawatha got on his hands and knees and quietly slithered off.

"I wonder whom he's going to talk to?" Teddy said to Knarf. A few minutes later, Hiawatha returned.

"I spoke to somebody," he said.

"You did?" exclaimed Teddy. "Are we going to have a parade?"

In The Attic

"Not much of a parade," said Hiawatha. "It's waiting upstairs in the attic. But remember what I said, it's not going to be very good."

Knarf and Teddy followed Hiawatha up the narrow stairs to the attic.

"The parade's waiting on the other side behind that old trunk," said Hiawatha.

When Knarf and Teddy reached the other side of the trunk, they saw what Hiawatha meant.

The soldiers were a band of Tin Soldiers. Most of them were old. Lots of them were shabby and broken. But all of them stood tall and straight and held their flags and banners proudly.

"Hurray for the soldiers!" shouted Teddy. "But where's the band?"

"There," said Hiawatha. "It's not much of a band."

Knarf and Teddy looked.

"I don't see any band at all," said Teddy.

"All I see," said Knarf, "is a cricket and a paper horn and a baby's rattle and a tin whistle and some more crickets."

"That's the band," said Hiawatha. Then the first cricket raised a stick and the other crickets blew the whistle and rattled the rattle and sounded the horn. The noise was wonderful and loud.

Lots Of Feathers

"Hurray for the band!" shouted Teddy. "But where are the airplanes?"

"There," said Hiawatha, and he pointed to a lot of feathers from an old cushion. He pushed out his cheeks and he blew and the feathers went sailing and skimming through the air.

"Hurray for the airplanes!" cried Teddy. "But where's the band and tigers?"

"There," said Hiawatha, and he pointed to two kittens and two puppies and two mice.

Teddy led the parade. Knarf marched in the middle, sitting on a big white hobby horse. Hiawatha just sat on top of the dusty trunk and shook his head.

"It's not much of a parade," he kept saying in a sad voice.

But Teddy kept shouting: "Wonderful! Wonderful! Wonderful! So wonderful!"

Rupert and the Outlaws—16

Getting to his feet Rupert felt his way round the hut. The roof was made of lots of brushwood and though he pulled away a few pieces he cannot make a way of escape. Then he pushes on the door with no better result. The sound of the men's voices has faded, showing that they have moved away some distance. As he pauses there is a new noise much nearer, little scraps and snufflings, and all at once a puff of dust appears by a low hole in one of the walls.

First Win For Manchester United

'BUSBY' BABES TROUNCE CHELSEA 6-3 TO OPEN LEAGUE ACCOUNT

London, Sept. 2. Manchester United, who lost their first two games this season, showed far superior form in their English football league match when they trounced Chelsea 6-3 before 66,500 London fans at Stamford Bridge tonight.

Chelsea could not match the United side on the wings where Warren Bradley and Albert Scanlon dominated play. Bradley scored two goals and the other United scorers were Dennis Viollet (2), Bobby Charlton and Albert Quixam.

Tonight's big league programme was also notable for the first defeat of Huddersfield Town, who had been unbeaten since their 2-2 draw with Arsenal in the second division and now, with only 12 days of the season gone, there is no club in the four divisions with a 100 per cent record.

First Points
Newcastle United, who scraped a 1-0 home win over Birmingham City, and Lincoln City, 3-2 winners at Portsmouth, gained their first points this season. Only two sides, Chester and Reading, have yet to get off the mark.

League champions Wolverhampton Wanderers were held to a 2-2 draw by Sheffield Wednesday. It looked as though Wednesday were going to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the opening of their ground with a win but the end Jim Murray popped up for the equaliser and his second goal.

Storming Game
It was a storming game, with Wolves ahead after five minutes, but Wednesday fought back with goals by Roy Shiner and Redfern Fraydell.

Tottenham Hotspur won a tremendous home battle against West Bromwich Albion 2-1. Bobby Smith got the winner six minutes from time, though it

Attractive Batting By Sobers, Hallam Against Indians

London, Sept. 2. Garfield Sobers, the young West Indies Test batsman, and Maurice Hallam in lesser degree delighted spectators today at the Hastings Festival match with their attractive batting for A. E. R. Gilligan's XI against the Indians.

Driving and hooking fiercely besides cutting with perfect timing, Sobers thrashed the steady but far from hostile bowling of the tourists for 74, including 14 fours, out of 108 in 75 minutes.

He found his form so quickly that he took 17 in an over off Chandra Borde and hit 11 boundaries in his first 50, made 38 minutes, but a strained back muscle slowed him and contributed to his dismissal.

Took The Limelight

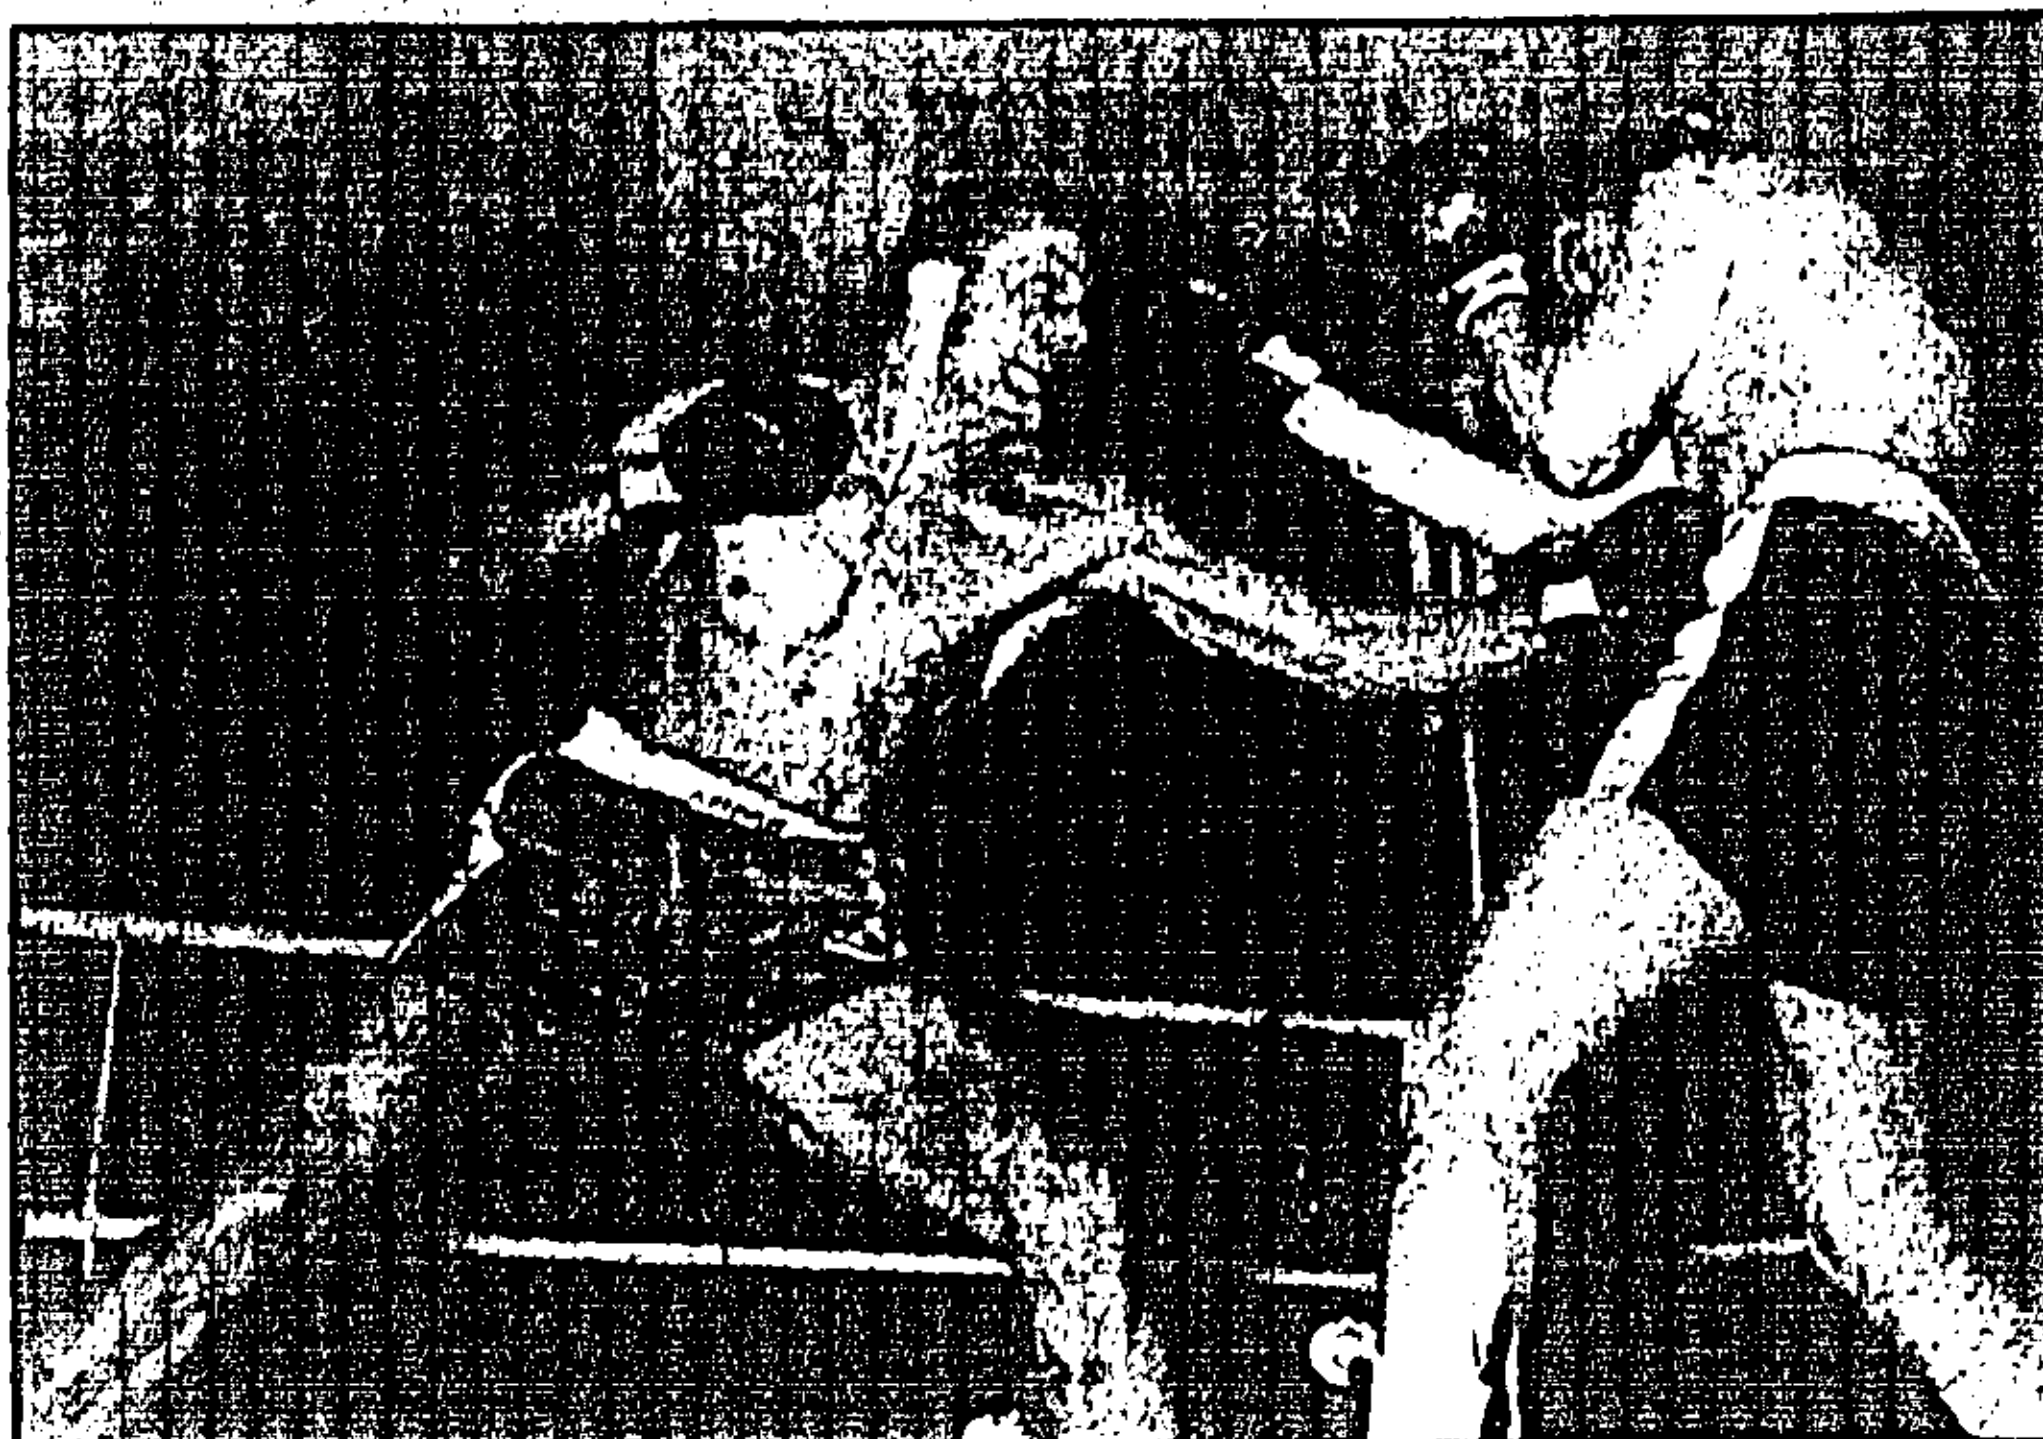

Hallam who shared in an opening partnership of 95 with Young of Gloucestershire, took the limelight with his fine driving and cutting until Sobers arrived. But the Leicestershire batsman struggled for runs after lunch and having hit 12 fours in a stay of two and three-quarter hours fell two short of his hundred to the alert P. G. Joshi. Hallam with his first run reached his 2,000 for the season.

The Indian wicketkeeper did not concede an extra until the new ball was taken and at tea, when Gilligan's XI had further profited from strong driving by Mortimore and Taylor, he

Henry Cooper, British and Empire heavyweight champion, sinks a left to South African Gwile de Klerk's body, in their Empire title bout at Porthcawl last week.

Cooper retained the title with a fifth-round technical knockout victory and will defend his British and Empire titles against Joe Erskine next month. After that he will make a bid for Ingemar Johansson's world title. Both he and Erskine did better in previous bouts with Johansson than Floyd Patterson when he lost the title.—London Express photo.

Gonzales Scratches From World Pro Tournament

Paris, Sept. 2. Jack Kramer, head of the professional tennis troupe, who is having trouble getting his men to play in Europe, ran into further trouble today when one of his star players, Pancho Gonzales, scratched from the world professional clay courts championships which start here on September 6.

Kramer told Gonzales during a transatlantic phone call that he had been drawn to play the opening match of the eight-day championships against Australia's Jack Arkinistall and that he would be "in plenty of trouble" if he was not on the Roland Garros Stadium court on September 6.

THE DRAW

The draw including Gonzales gave the following matchups:

P. Gonzales (U.S.) v. J. Arkinistall (Australia).
A. Cooper (Australia) v. J. Cawthorn (Australia).

K. Rosewell (Australia) v. J. Asboth (Hungary).

P. Segura (U.S.) v. P. Remy (France).

J. Worthington (Australia) v. T. Trabert (U.S.).

J. Iemetti (France) v. F. Sedgman (Australia).

M. Rose (Australia) v. M. Anderson (Australia).

P. Molloy (Australia) v. L. Hoad (Australia).

If Gonzales fails to turn up he will be replaced by Frances Robert Collin and the matches will be:

K. Rosewell (Australia) v. J. Asboth (Hungary).

M. Anderson (Australia) v. R. Collin (France).

T. Trabert (U.S.) v. G. Worthington (Australia).

Pan-American Games U.S. TAKE 26 OUT OF 32 ATHLETICS GOLD MEDALS

Chicago, Sept. 2. The United States today won five more track and field events, four of them with record performances, and wound up that phase of competition in the third Pan-American Games with 26 of the 32 gold medals.

In the six days of track and field events among athletes of the Americas at Soldier Field, the U.S. set 22 Pan-American records, sweeping 1-2-3 sweeps in 10 of the events.

With the track and field, swimming and diving stars got going on their expected grab of most of the gold medals. They scored a sweep in the 3-metre springboard diving. Gary Tobian of California was first, followed by San Hall, Ohio, and Bob Webster, California.

In the 200-metre breaststroke, William Mulliken, a student at Miami University and 1959 NCAA champion, won in the Pan-American record time of 2:43.1.

Bettors Own Record

Jeff Farrell of Kansas, won the 100-metre freestyle in Pan-American record time of 59.3 secs, breaking his own previous record of 59.5 secs in trials two days ago.

John Kelley of Massachusetts got the U.S. started today with a record victory in the 20-mile marathon over Chicago streets. The 29-year-old Kelley, scoring the U.S.'s first victory in international marathon competition in 50 years, won in Pan-American record time of 2 hours, 27 minutes, 54.2 seconds. Another U.S. runner, James Green, also broke the record of 2:35:09.2 set by Delfo Cabrera, Argentina, in 1951.

In quick order after that, gold medals were won by the U.S. men's and women's 400-metre relay teams. Dyrone Burleson of the University of Oregon in the 1,500-metre run, and Buster Quist of New Mexico, in the javelin.

The only "south of the border" breakthroughs were scored by Brazil's Adhemar da Silva in the hop, step and jump and the West Indies Federation in the 1,000-metre relay. The West Indies team of U.S. college stars streaked to a Pan-American record of 3:05.3, about two-tenths of a second faster than the old mark and the fourth fastest of all time.

In tennis, Mexico's Yolanda Ramirez and Rosa Reyes defeated Althea Gibson and Karol Fageros of the U.S. in the women's doubles final by 6-8, 7-6, 6-1. Slight solace was gained for the U.S. by Jon Douglas and Dorothy Knodel, who won third-place bronze medals in the men's and women's singles.

Elsewhere, U.S. athletes had a good day. The baseball team swamped Costa Rica, 28-0, a record score in Pan-American play. The victory lifted the U.S. into first place in the "B" division of the Baseball round robin.—UPI.

Sour Grapes

Sir,—It is a great pity that your very informative sports page has been spoilt recently by publishing the crosswalk of J. M. Macavish and the three Army referees.

It is very sad that Mr. Dalgey, who had a very distinguished career here as a soccer referee should add his name to the "transient epistle" along with those of Messrs. Lenton and Landon (AFPA) before he left the Colony.

Let us have free speech by all means in the press, but please, constructive criticism and not sour grapes.

European Horse Trials Begin At Harewood

Leeds, Sept. 2. Titleholder Mrs. John Waddington of Britain, on her bay gelding "Airs and Graces," and Germany's Ottokar Pohlmann, on "Polarfuchs," tied for first place in the dressage event of the European Horse Trials which began at Harewood Park near here today.

Mrs. Waddington and Pohlmann were penalised only 35.33 points for the event, a test of a horse's suppleness, willingness and obedience. Two members of each of the 10 countries entered in the trials, participated in the event today and two others will participate tomorrow.

GERMANY LEADS

S. Lindback of Sweden, on "Armance," was placed fifth with 53.67 penalty points. Another Swedish entry, G. Nilsson on "Ossalvick," was placed 20th with 97.67 points. This gave Sweden fourth place in the team standings.

Germany's Heiner Klinken on "Fortuna" took third place with 50 points which, combined with Pohlmann's total, made Germany the leader in the team standings. Britain is the defending team champion.

MERDEKA SOCCER TOURNAMENT Champion Malaya XI Beat S. Vietnam 4-3 In Winners' Pool

Kuala Lumpur, Sept. 2. Malaya, the defending Merdeka tournament champions, today beat South Vietnam, conquerors of South Korea, 4-3, in the first match of the winners' pool (championship round).

Malaya led 3-1 at half-time but the Vietnamese levelled at 3-3 and the match was anybody's after that.

Two minutes from time, Vietnam seemed to have scored through Ho Tam but the goal was disallowed for off-side.

The Vietnamese players protested but referee Gregg De Silva of Singapore was firm. The Vietnamese deserved at least a draw. They matched the Malaya's, scored the first goal of the match through Thoi Vinh but lost the grasp on the match by allowing Malaya a 3-1 lead at half-time. They made a courageous rally in the final minutes, but this would not save them.

Malaya scored through Stanley Gabrielle (2) and Abdul Ghani (2). Vietnam scored through Thoi Vinh, Van Ron and Ita Tam.—Reuter.

Singapore Loses To S. Korea In Losers' Pool

Kuala Lumpur, Sept. 2. South Korea today beat Singapore by four goals to one after leading 2-1 at the half-time in the losers pool.

Korea who were originally tipped to win the championship but were surprisingly beaten in the preliminary round by South Vietnam, made mincemeat of the Singapore defence and scored at will.

Both teams played "do or die" football to thrill 20,000 fans who thronged the floodlit Merdeka Stadium.

Fought from the start, both Korea and Singapore reformed each other's goalposts but it was left to Korea to open the account in the 31st minute through inside-left, Woo Sang-kwon.

Singapore equalised four minutes later through left-wing Kim Swei.

Play now became brisk and Korea went into the lead once again, four minutes later when centre-forward, Yoo Pang-seon landed a stinger, which the Singapore goalkeeper never saw.

SURREY, WARWICK FACE STIFF OPPOSITION IN THEIR FINAL MATCHES

London, Sept. 2. Surrey and Warwickshire, both battling for runner-up position behind Yorkshire in the English county cricket championship, met with stiff opposition in their final matches today.

Accurate bowling tied Surrey down to a total of 206 against Nottinghamshire at the Oval, but they claimed four wickets for 29, to be in a happier position by the close.

At one stage, Surrey were four for 68, and they owed much to a splendid fifth-wicket stand of 69 by Tom Clark (47) and Roy Swetnam, who went on to make 79.

Fractured Finger

Unfortunately for Surrey, their young opening batsman John Edging received a fractured finger when hit on the left hand by pace bowler Frank Tyson and had to retire from the match after scoring six.

Warwickshire were kept in the field by Sussex at Hove for all but 15 minutes of the day.

Ken Suttle hit 136, including 16 fours, in 270 minutes, out of the Sussex total of 374.

Ted Dexter made 87 (14 fours) in 128 minutes and in the same time added 140 with Suttle for the third wicket.

At the close, Warwickshire were 16 for no wicket.

Scores

Close of play scores in today's cricket matches were:
At Hastings: A. E. R. Gilligan's XI 375 (M. Hallam 98, G. Sobers 74). India 46 for one.

At Scarborough: MCC 329 for nine declared (D. Insole 43, P. Sainsbury 77, R. Booth 48). Yorkshire 12 for no wicket.

At The Oval: Surrey 206 (R. Swetnam 79, T. Clark 47). Nottinghamshire 29 for four.

At Lords: Glamorgan 364 for eight (W. Parbhoo 133, J. Pressdee 53, W. Wooler 45 not out). Versus Middlesex.

At Hove: Sussex 374 (K. Suttle 136, T. Dexter 87, J. Parkes 46, H. Doggart 47). Warwickshire 16 for no wicket.

At Folkestone: Nottinghamshire 127 (N. Hill 47, A. Brown 46 for 40). Kent 149 for one (R. Wilson 71, A. Pheby 60 not out).

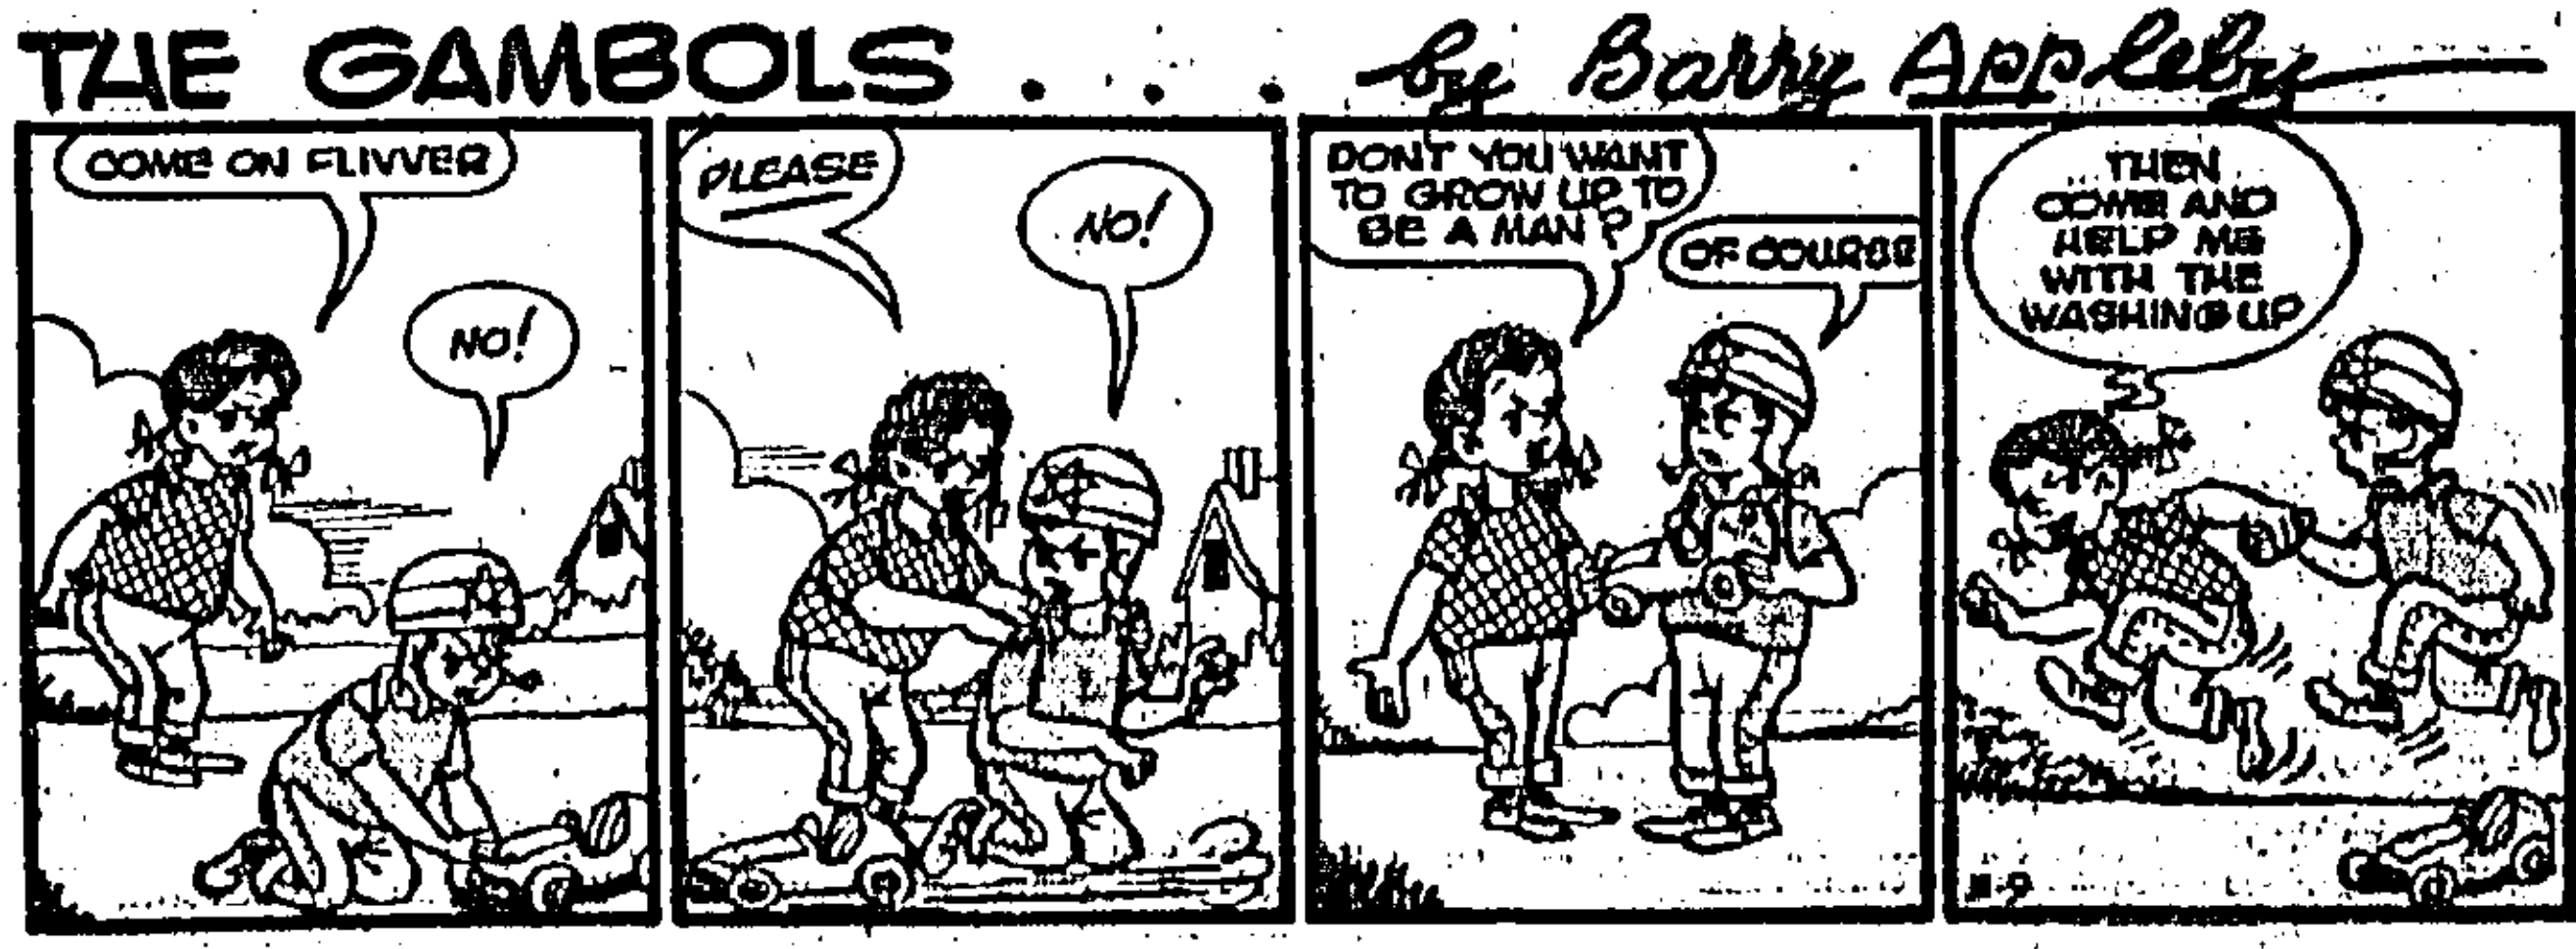

At Blackpool: Lancashire 230 (K. Grieves 41, C. Washbrook 59, B. Booth 59). Somerset 69 for five.—Reuter.

"We have contacted Willie Ketchum, Moore's manager, and he indicated that he is interested in the offer," Umal said. "We would hold the fight at Rizal Stadium and before a crowd of about 60,000."

RETURN BOUT CLAUSE
Bennie Ford, matchmaker for the San Francisco Boxing Club, said he did the talking with Ketchum but that his organization was not tied up with the promotion in any other way.

"This is just a friendly transaction to help Umal out," Ford said. He added that any contract would include a clause in which Elorde would have to meet Moore again in the United States if he dethroned the champion.

Elorde met Sandy Saddler, former world champion, for the 120-pound title here in 1950 and lost on a technical knockout in the 13th round.—UPI.

CHINA ALL SET FOR HER FIRST NATIONAL GAMES AT PEKING ON SEPT. 13

By RONALD FARQUHAR

Peking, Sept. 2.

Hundreds of perspiring workers are hustling to put the finishing touches on a big new sports stadium here for China's First National Games opening on September 13.

Stripped to the waist, they toil in blazing summer sunshine alongside bulldozers, shifting huge mounds of earth and road rollers smoothing concrete approach roads.

Viewed from outside, the stadium building shines like a giant white bowl on the Chinese capital's eastern outskirts and looks practically complete. But work continues unceasingly to get its immediate surroundings ready for opening day.

The arena's steep, double-tiered terracing will seat 80,000 spectators, officials say. It is claimed to be one of the biggest in the Far East.

It has a football ground surrounded by a cinder running track, and special facilities for jumping and throwing field events.

100-Foot Walls

The stadium walls tower about 100 feet high and reports say they have been specially designed to protect competitors and spectators from the fierce winds which plague Peking in winter and early spring. The winds sweep down from the north and across the Gobi desert, bringing with them stinging clouds of yellow dust which can spoil athletic performances and make watching highly uncomfortable.

The outer rim of the stadium rises to four storeys. Rooms on the second, third and fourth floors have been designed as hostels to accommodate up to 4,000 athletes. On the ground floor there will be exhibition halls, restaurants, cinemas and clubrooms, reports say.

The National Games which will inaugurate the new stadium this month are being held in honour of the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Communist Chinese People's Republic which falls on October 1.

Thousands of competitors are coming from all over the country, including Mongol racing horsemen and marksmen from Tibet.

40 Events

There will be more than 40 events ranging from track and field athletics to old-style Chinese fencing and freestyle wrestling, and from modern events such as swimming, canoeing, basketball, table tennis, motor-cycling, baseball and a horse-ecce sending and receiving contest for radio operators.

Some of the events will be held at other sites in the capital.

There will be exhibition performances of a number of sports recently introduced into China, including track cycling, epee and foil fencing, freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling and speedboat racing.

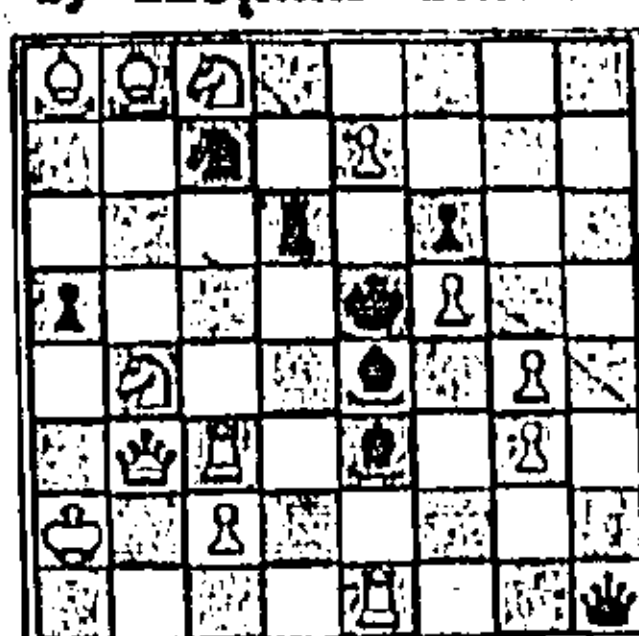

Various provinces and big cities have been holding local qualifying competitions since spring to help select their teams for the games.

Peking and Shanghai, China's largest city, each will send a team of 400 men and women athletes. So will the army, whose strong contingent includes 30 national record-holders.

China's national minority races will be represented. Teams of expert riders picked from the herdsman of Inner Mongolia and Sinkiang—a

American Fightmongers Routed CLOWNING INGO TALKS MONEY AS RUTHLESSLY AS HE FIGHTS

By HARRY CARPENTER

London.

The Americans must hate Ingemar Johansson. The cold-eyed, hard-boiled U.S. fightmongers, who have just come off second best with Ingo negotiating the return fight with Floyd Patterson, must wonder what hit them.

I wouldn't want to face this blue-eyed boy in the ring or round the business table. But the public love him. They nearly enlisted that famous right hand in Furslow making him a star. He never once objected.

But this dimpled Swede, who now rules the fight world as the most dangerous boxing man alive, is under no illusions about the enemy he has generated by his red-hot bargaining over the Patterson return.

He simply forced Jack Dempsey and his five attendant Americans to kowtow to him. It makes quite a change.

Dynamite

On the train back from Portland, where Johansson watched Henry Cooper and Joe Fiske win, he divided some of the plans for his next fight to the States, the country that has lost the world heavyweight title after 25 years' unbroken monopoly.

The young gent in the grey flannel suit was talking dynamite. "I only want my friends round me next time I go to the States," said Johansson. "I shall pick my sparring partners. There will be no American trainers or managers. There will be no strangers in my camp. No one will get in to see me unless I want him there."

Fighting talk from a man whose private life looks so inoffensive, so peaceful, so unassuming.

"The Americans will put their equipment into our corner just before the fight with Patterson," said Ingo. "O.K. But just before the fight starts, it will all be thrown out and I shall use MY equipment."

When they tried to crowd into the hotel conference-room Ingo held up his hand, pointed to four of the Americans, and said:

"You four go away, please. I am here with Mr. Ahlquist, my adviser. Six against two is not fair. Two against two O.K."

Two against two O.K. That's how the big contract was argued out.

Yet this shrewd Swede, who has shaken the U.S. fight monopolists more than any District Attorney's investigation, can relax with friends and enjoy naive pleasures.

Such as the endless funny stories with which Johansson kept a first-class carriage amused on the four-hour rail trip from Wales, all of them in near-idiomatic English. Then there was the "transfusion."

One of the souvenirs Ingo brought back from the States is a big, phony hypodermic syringe.

He plunged it into fellow-traveller Jack Solomons' bare arm.

JOHANSSON... shrewd

The routine had been well-rehearsed. Solomons winced. And up the barrel appeared what looked like about a pint of rich, red promoter's blood.

Unfair

Solomons pretended to faint. Ingo flourished the "needle."

"Who needs blood?" he said. Nobody volunteered. So Johansson grabbed the arm of his Swedish pal sitting next to him and pumped the "blood" into him. We all roared.

Meanwhile I leave the U.S. fight mob with this story, as told to me by Ingemar Johansson.

"Once upon a time, four foreigners attacked one Swede. When asked how they got on, the foreigners replied: 'We fought for two hours. If we hadn't got his crutches away, the Swede would have killed us.'"

Unfair on American. Ingo isn't even on crutches.

I Blame Referees For The Brawls

Says STAN CULLIS

The eve-of-season memorandum to clubs from the Football League and Football Association rightly stresses the importance of players refraining from misbehaviour and gamesmanship.

While most clubs agree with this decision to reiterate the directive sent out last year, I feel it would also be a good time for referees to reflect they have important responsibilities.

A Pleasure

I am quite definite in saying that when games deteriorate into brawls it is because of lack of control by the official. Ill-temper and vicious play are never tolerated by top-class referees.

You very rarely see a game get out of hand when handled by such splendid referees as Arthur Ellis, Reg Leafe, Merwin Griffiths, and Jack Clough, to mention just a few of the top officials.

Such matches are a pleasure to watch with these referees right on top of the job all the time.

Yet it seems to me that when the Football Association memo was sent out last season the majority of referees became too preoccupied in looking for minor indiscretions rather than the serious offences.

By this, I mean referees were more concerned with time-wasting tactics, appealing, standing on the ball to delay the taking of free kicks and forgetting the major crimes such as over-the-ball tackles and deliberate hacking.

Recently, in conversation with Billy Walker, Nottingham Forest's manager, he posed the question: "How many referees know what constitutes over-the-ball and violent and dangerous tackling?"

I wholeheartedly agreed with Mr Walker that here lies one of the chief deficiencies in the make-up of the present referee.

While they know the rule-book backward, they miss the tricks of the trade. And it is this lack of the trade that can ruin a game more easily than the odd acts of gamesmanship.

Walker stressed this point to support his argument that ex-professionals would, on the whole, make better referees.

Odd Results

Billy believes that ex-players would be able to spot these underhand tactics all the time. But that, of course, is another chapter... this fete for worrying about the minor details at the expense of real misbehaviour had produced some odd results in the way of punishment.

It makes me wonder exactly how the FA gauges the extent of a man's punishment, when one player can get 14 days' suspension for passing an unsentimental remark to a referee and a player who "stretches out" an opponent with a right to the jaw receives only the same sentence!

To me, it is as illogical as giving the same sentence to a chap who steals a loaf of bread as the person who embezzles £50,000.

Referees have the power to make or mar a game. And it is no use complaining that the FA does not back them up. My experience suggests they receive every support.

Brandt's Ninth-Inning Home Run Gives Giants 4-3 Win Over Cubs

San Francisco, Sept. 2.

Baby-faced Jackie Brandt crashed a home run in the ninth inning today to give the National League leaders, San Francisco Giants, a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs, and pull them out of a tailspin.

Brandt's big hit—his 12th of the season, was the third of the day to be registered by the Giants. Felipe Alou hit a solo homer in the fourth inning and Rocky White McCovey hit another in the sixth as San Francisco moved away to a 2-1 lead.

Knocked Out

But the Cubs knocked out Mike McCormick in the ninth inning while scoring two runs which tied the game. McCormick had a two-hitter going when the ninth opened. He gave way to Sam Jones with two on and one out.

Jones, who eventually came out of the game with his 18th victory, then served up run-scoring singles to Ernie Banks and pinch-hitter Walt Moryn before striking out Irv Noren for the final out.

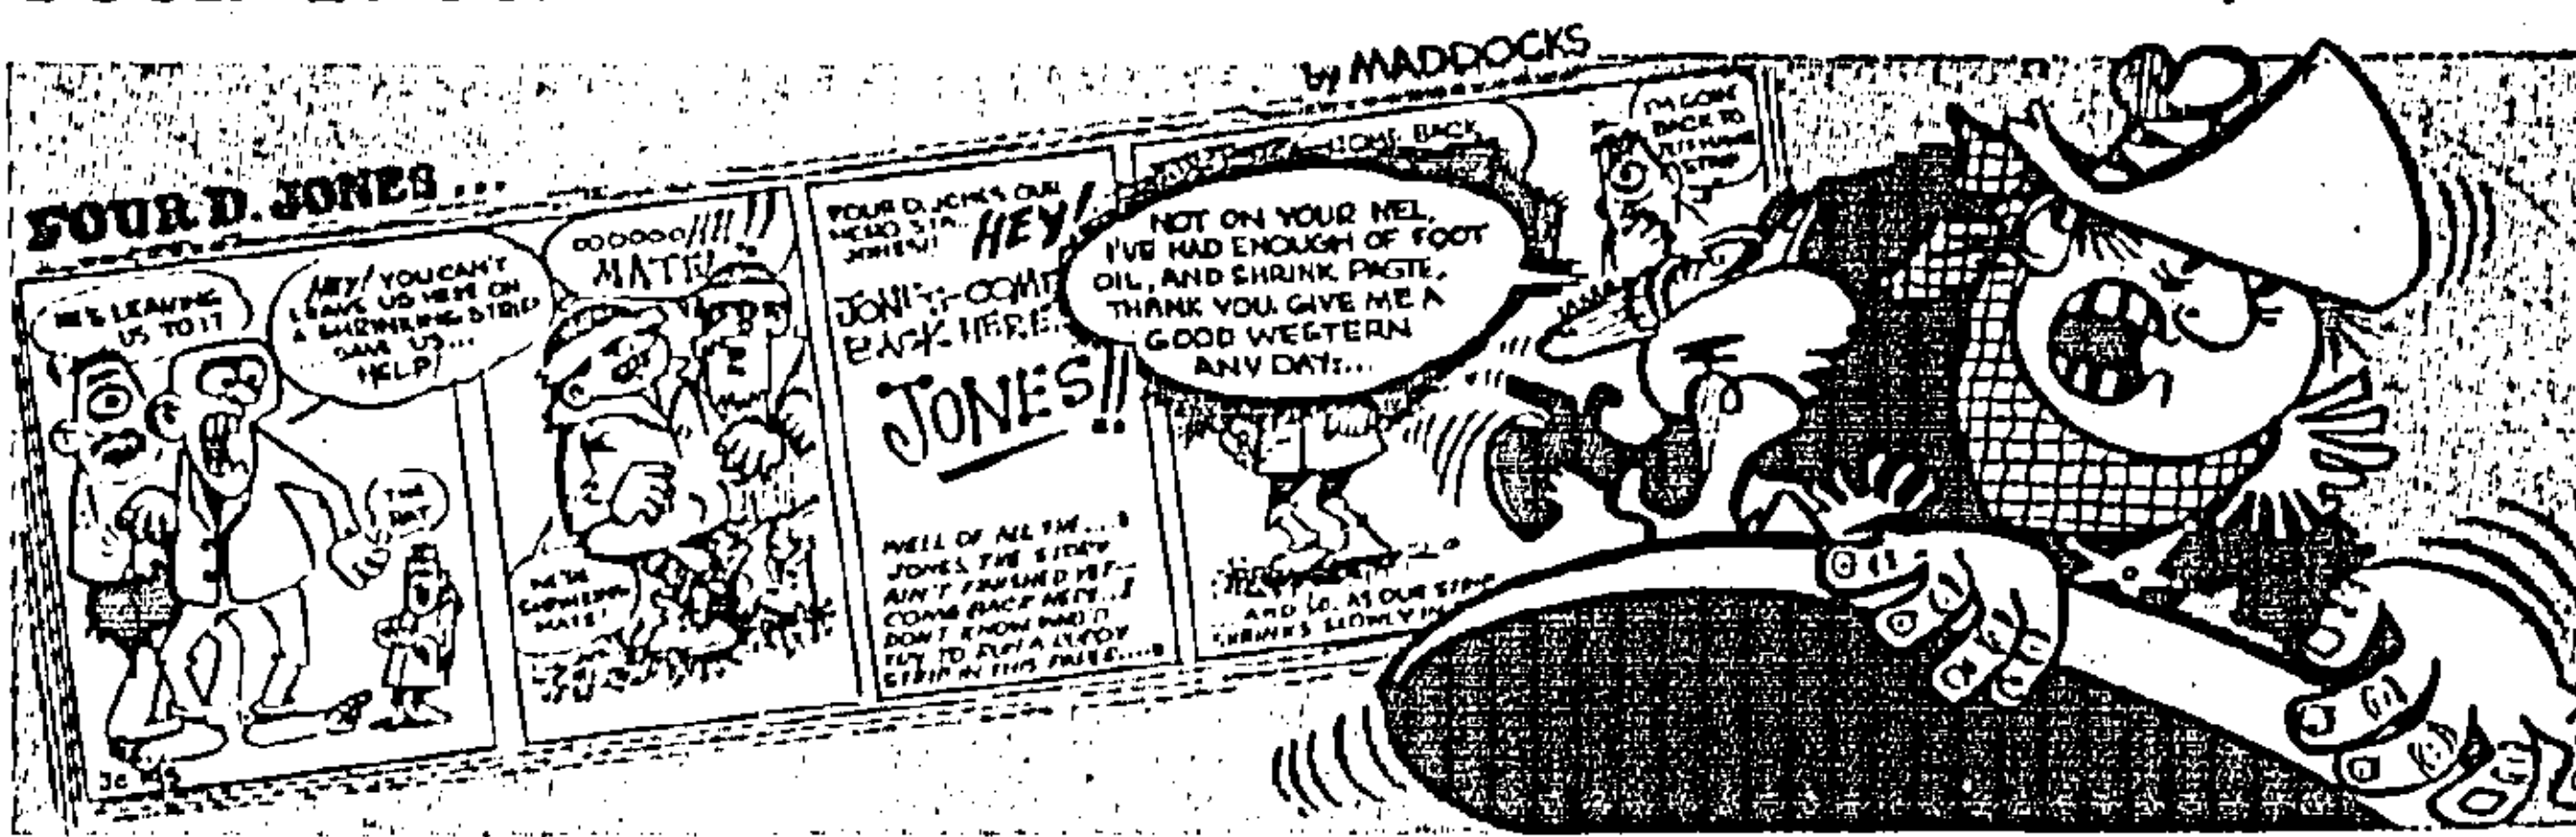

Don Elston, the Cubs' ace reliever, started the ninth inning in place of Art Ceccarelli, who had gone out in the previous frame for a pinch-hitter, Elston, who lost his seventh against six wins, retired Orlando Cepeda on a fly to right for the first out. But then Brandt, who had his troubles filling in for the injured Jim Davenport at third base, came through with a blow which just cleared the screen at the 340-foot mark.

AN UNFORTUNATE U.S. STEP

London Closes Lower

London, Sept. 2. The stock market closed lower today in reaction to the rise in U.S. interest rates.

Industrials presented a mixed appearance as good production figures and favourable corporate news helped offset the dampening effect of the U.S. monetary action. However, blue-chips and shares with an American following tended easier.

Gold shares opened easier but rallied at the close. Other mining issues were generally dull.

Oil registered small losses. City-edged securities fell back sharply to close with losses of up to nearly half a point.

Greek bonds were firm in the foreign bond market but German were dull.

Dollar stocks finished above their lower-UPP.

Treasury Bill Rate Now Above London's

London, Sept. 1. This week (ended August 28) New York's Treasury Bill rate jumped above London's. At one period last year London's was five times as high as New York's.

This puts some upward pressure on London money rates but is unlikely to raise the bank rate unless it puts real pressure on Britain's reserves or the British internal boom requires correction by a higher bank rate—neither of which seems to be happening yet.

The bungle which brought the jump in New York money rates during an unprecedentedly critical steel strike—which managements are definitely taking as a show-down "to bring labour to its senses"—is an unfortunate coincidence for Wall Street and the economy.

But there does not seem to have been much of it. The figures so far indicate that the high New York money have not brought enough relief and far from causing the dollar to exert any such pressure as would require or entitle other countries to take defensive measures—China Mail Special.

TIGHTER MONEY
There was every reason to expect further twists of tighter money after the strike but while it is on it should make money easier and the Federal Reserve had almost publicly showed a rise in its discount rates for the duration of the strike.

If the paradoxical continues, it might press on Wall Street. If it can be removed by Washington talking and acting more sensibly New York money rates could ease back—as already seems to be happening—and their repercussions on London bank rate or anything else would be put off though probably only for some weeks.

Continental watching in dollars across sterling costs Britain nothing. Covered arbitrage on forward swaps is only a temporary loss—the Bank of England loses spot dollars and equally gains forward dollars and the money comes back when the swaps mature.

It is only when the Continentals or others move uncovered money from London to New York that London loses anything outright.

MONEY RATES
There has been some of this, because the differential between New York and Continental money rates is much wider than the New York-London differential and also because the distinguished Continental banks and other jitterbugs who went to an extreme of discount for the dollar have lately swung towards the other extreme (since nothing has happened and they are always impatient).

Operations were mostly professional and routine. New speculative interest continued to be stifled by farm legislation uncertainties crop report to be issued on Tuesday.

A Memphis spot farm today estimated the crop as of September 1 at 14,600,000 bales. This compared with the previous government estimate for 14,815,000 bales and last year's crop of 15,120,000 bales.

The Liverpool market closed five to 10 English points lower and 655 to 699 American points under New York futures.

Certificated stocks were unchanged at 2,502—UPP.

IRANIANS ACQUITTED OF RECEIVING STOLEN JADE

Two Iranians, Zaynol Vyshnisky, 39, and Vova Vishnesky, 25, living in the Mongkok Hotel, were given the benefit of doubt and were acquitted by Mr E. Corbally at Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of receiving 15 stolen pieces of jade valued at about $3,000.

ELECTRA ENGINES OVERHAUL

The Hongkong Aircraft Engineering Co. Ltd today started the first testing and overhaul of the Electra's jet-prop engine to be done outside the United States.

The engine is the 3,750 h.p. Allison, a power plant of one of CPA's new Electras. It had its first test run this morning. An Allison representative is assisting HACO Engineers. A company spokesman said the whole engine test running time would be three to four hours. Although the engine has been in the HACO works for some days, testing has been delayed until today to allow modifications to the test bed, which previously had been taking Viscount Dart engines. After the overhauling is finished, HACO engineers expect to have an engine every fortnight to overhaul. CPA has a staggered engine changing system.

Cantonese Charity Opera

Tickets to the value of $50,000 have already been sold for the charity Cantonese opera presentation at the Lee Theatre tonight in aid of the Women's Welfare Club West nursery and centre at Bridges Street.

Mr P. C. M. Sedgewick, Secretary for Chinese Affairs, and Mrs Sedgewick are attending the charity performance consisting of excerpts of well-known Chinese operas including that of "Dream of the Red Chamber". Mrs Li Ho Shiu-king, Chairman of the Club, and Mrs Fung Tang Shiu-kwai, Chairman of the fund-raising committee will welcome the guests on arrival. Their daughters are taking part in the opera and Mrs C. N. Li, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Chinese Affairs is playing a leading role.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 2. Davis Benton, a government weatherman stationed here, reported yesterday that it rained every day of his 26-day vacation in the Houston, Texas, area—UPI.

The jade, reported stolen from a shop in Central District, was alleged to have been sold by the two defendants to a jewellery shop in Kowloon on August 14.

A witness in the Kowloon trial, Eric M. Law, in a pre-trial hearing, identified the two defendants as the men from whom he bought the jade for $2,550.

Vyshnisky, the first defendant, told the Court yesterday that he was with his wife in the Mongkok Hotel on August 13 and 14. His evidence was corroborated by his wife.

Not Satisfied

Vishnesky, the second defendant, said he was at a friend's house in North Point on August 13 and 14. His friend's wife, Mrs Zuhreef, corroborated his evidence.

Acquitting the defendants, Mr Corbally said he was not satisfied with the evidence adduced by the Prosecution.

Defendants were represented by Mr Richard Winter, instructed by Mr J. M. D'Almada Remondet, of D'Almada Remondet and Co.

Keeping Up With The Times

Complaining that he had been given too long a term for possession of "merely" sweepings of heroin, Chan Tak told Mr Justice R. H. Mills-Owens this morning that on two previous occasions he had never received more than six months from Mr Hin-shing Lo for similar offences, but last time another Magistrate, Mr T. L. Yang, gave him five months.

"We must move with the times," remarked the Judge, dismissing Chan's appeal.

Mr Justice Mills-Owens also refused the appeals for lighter sentences brought by four other men sentenced by Mr T. L. Yang for possession of drugs. All had previous convictions. Wu Shing had received a year, Ng Tsan-hau seven months, Leung Chun five months, and So Tak-wo six months.

So promised to rid himself of the drug habit if the Judge allowed him to sign a bond instead of going to prison.

Mr Justice Mills-Owens said he thought So would do better in prison where he would be given an opportunity of undergoing a cure.

Sentence Nearly Doubled

In the Appeals Court this morning, Mr Justice R. H. Mills-Owens thought of doubling the sentence on Wong Wai-yuen who was convicted of what he called "a particularly mean sort of pretences."

Wong was sentenced by Mr E. Corbally to a concurrent term of six months on three charges of obtaining money by false pretences and 18 other similar charges were taken into consideration.

The Judge noted that the appellant pretended he could obtain employment for people and induced them to part with money. "Is there any reason why I should not double your sentence?" he asked Wong.

COUSIN WOULD HELP

Wong pleaded that if he were left off to go to Bangkok by the end of this month, he could then come back to Hong Kong and help him with a job and money. But she was to marry and leave for Malaya at the end of the month and if he had to serve his sentence he would miss her and he would not be able to find work in Hong Kong.

Mr Justice Mills-Owens dismissed the appeal, but allowed the sentence to stand without increasing it. He told Wong, "Consider yourself fortunate."

Receiving Case Sent Back To Magistracy

Mr Justice R. H. Mills-Owens in the Appeal Court yesterday remitted a case of receiving stolen property back to the Magistracy, holding that the facts were more consistent with actual theft.

The appellant, Tang Fai was appealing against his conviction by Mr A. Sangrethi who sentenced him to six months for receiving a portable radio.

Tang said the Police beat him up and forced him to make a statement saying that an accomplice climbed up a drainpipe and stole the radio through a window and handed it to him waiting down below.

When told that the Judge thought that a conviction for theft should be substituted for the one for receiving, Tang said he wished to call witnesses in respect of this move.

Free-For-All At Dinner Party

Seeking a reduction of a four-month sentence for assault from Mr Justice R. H. Mills-Owens in the Appeal Court this morning, Mak Chuen vigorously denied that he encouraged children to fight by offering the winner 10 cents.

Crown Counsel, Mr D. E. Greenfield supported his denial saying he believed that it was another man who incited the children of his co-tenants in this way. Mak was involved in a free-for-all at a roof-top dinner party where everyone was using fists but him. The Police found him wielding a bamboo pole and he injured three people.

Mak maintained that he was set upon first in the dark and he retaliated. He didn't even know how the fight started, he said. He denied having gone up with other men for the purpose of breaking up the party.

Mr Justice Mills-Owens refused to interfere with the sentence passed by Mr P. X. F. Leonard and dismissed Mak's appeal.

Lost Liquor

Oklahoma City, Sept. 2. The T and O Liquor Store acquired the dubious distinction of being the first liquor establishment to be burgled in Oklahoma, only 2 1/2 hours after the state's new "wet" laws took effect yesterday.

The proprietor reported to police that a boy ran in, grabbed two bottles of wine and fled—UPI.

Dalai Lama: Tibet's Future 'Bright'

New Delhi, Sept. 2. The Dalai Lama has told India's President, Dr Rajendra Prasad, that according to his official oracles, his stars were in the ascendancy.

He is reported to have told Dr Prasad that the prospects of Tibet's regaining its former status were "very bright".

He later conferred with Mr Nehru, Indian Premier.

Mr Nehru has already said India will not sponsor the Tibetan case in the U.N. chiefly because India recognises Tibet as part of China.

In addition, Mr Nehru feels there is no point in a United Nations discussion so long as the Peking Government does not occupy China's seat in the U.N.

Mr Nehru is understood to have explained these points to the Dalai Lama while expressing sympathy with his feelings. He will spend a week in New Delhi—AFP and Reuters.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2. Postman Frederick Boyles, 22, began a one-year prison term today for mail theft.

Boyles said he withheld mail with the intention of delivering it on days when his load was lighter.

"But the lighter days never came," he said—UPI.

Families Must Be Protected

Families had to be protected against indecent assault which was becoming more prevalent, said Mr Justice Mills-Owens in the Appeals Court this morning.

He would be failing in his duty if he disturbed the comparatively lenient sentence of six months passed by Mr Hin-shing Lo on Cheung Sum for such an offence, he said, dismissing Cheung's appeal.

Appearing for Cheung, Mr Patrick Yu (instructed by P.C. Wong and Co) asked for a lighter sentence. He said that Cheung was a young cobbler in a resettlement area and had acted on the spur of the moment. Fortunately the girl whom he assaulted was not injured.

Commission Of Inquiry

Singapore, Sept. 2. The Singapore Deputy Prime Minister, Dr Toh Chin Chye, said in a radio broadcast today that the Government would shortly set up a commission of inquiry into the technical education system in the island state.

He said a commercial economy would not be able to cope with Singapore's growing population, especially since the island had no natural resources.

"We have got to industrialise—we have to rely on our one great natural resource—the skill of our people"—Reuters.

HK PROBLEMS

"I hear from Sir Alexander Grantham that the exhibition is excellent," Sir Robert told me. "The World Refugee Fund have done a great job for Hongkong refugees and the money they raise now is going into the vast resettlement plan we have in hand."

He paid special tribute to the American authorities who put up the cost of the first of six big resettlement blocks after the severe floods recently.

"It was a great gesture," Sir Robert said, "and one which we hope we will be able to carry on very soon."

'Shocking' Rise In US Crime, Hoover Hits At Apathy

Washington, Sept. 3. Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover lashed out today at Americans who stand idly by while hoodlums "prowl the streets" and turn parts of the nation into a "no man's land" of violence and terror.

Writing in the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, he urged private citizens to do all they could to help the "small patrol" of law officers trying to cope with an army of "depraved murderers, robbers, sex offenders and hoodlums."

Even as Hoover's article was published, his FBI agents arrested two Washington, D. C. men and charged them with seizing two young women at knife point on a Washington street early Sunday, taking them into a woods in nearby Maryland and assaulting them repeatedly.

FBI Reports

What the suspects apparently did not know was that both of the 23-year-old women were clerical employees in Hoover's FBI. They were driving home after a dance when the men invaded their car at a traffic light.

In his article, Hoover described as "shocking" an FBI report showing that the number of serious crimes increased by 9.3 per cent last year. He also noted that the report showed the highest crime rate in the nation's history.

Hoover reprimanded citizens who have a "detached attitude toward crime."

"This country's citizens," he wrote, "must awaken to the fact that the war on crime is not just the battle of the law enforcement officer."

"Every citizen has a stake when hoodlums prowling the streets brazenly committing atrocities which appal even veteran police officers."

"No one is immune from the attacks of depraved murderers, robbers, sex offenders and hoodlums."—UPI.

Two Churches Will Seek Reunion

Vatican City, Sept. 3. Catholic and Eastern Orthodox theologians will meet in Venice next year in an unofficial effort to pave the way for a reunion of the two churches, it was announced today.

The official Vatican Radio confirmed the news, which was announced earlier by a Catholic observer at the World Council of Churches in Rhodes, Greece, last month.

According to the broadcast, the meetings are only in "an exploratory stage," but, it said, "if they develop favourably the Holy See can then commit itself to a cleared and known terrain."—UPI.

Dog Without A Country

Bid To Save 'Bingo' From Life Of Endless Sailing

Nashville, Tennessee, Sept. 3. A Nashville disc jockey has started a "Bingo Boat Fund" aimed at raising $45 so a mongrel who boarded a Dutch ship in Australia can be allowed to go ashore.

The mongrel — Bingo — claims Australia as his home. Unless the money is raised to get him off the ship, he'll be a dog without a country, sailing endlessly.

START FUND

Disc jockey Chris Edwards saw the story on the United Press International news wire and decided to start a fund to get Bingo off the ship. He is asking for contributions of a nickel and up.

Bingo got himself into his predicament by boarding unseen. When somebody tried to put him off customs officials said $45 would have to be paid for quarantine bed and board.

Bingo today walked the decks of the Dutch liner John Van Oldenbarnevelt — a dog without a country and apparently without much of a future, either.

Bingo, a black and white dog of questionable ancestry, used to be Australian. But that was before he made the mistake of boarding the Dutch ship when it docked at Sydney.

His curiosity satisfied, Bingo attempted to troop back down

Briton Resigns As Principal Of S'pore College

Singapore, Sept. 3. The British principal of the Singapore Polytechnic, which was officially opened by the Duke of Edinburgh in February last year, has resigned following criticism of the college's organisation and syllabus by the Deputy Prime Minister, Dr Toh Chin Chyo.

Dr Toh, who is Chairman of the Polytechnic Board of Governors, said in a broadcast over Singapore Radio last night, "we have got to protect this young plant from worms in the ground and pests in the air."

BROADCAST

Mr David J. Williams, 55-year-old principal, was formerly principal of the Lancaster and Morecambe Technical College in England before he came to Singapore in 1956 to take up his present appointment.

During his broadcast last night Dr Toh said, "from now on students will take examinations set by the Polytechnic itself not by examiners sitting in Britain or Australia."

"We have abolished courses for higher school certificate and general certificate of education and typewriting and stenography. The three important subjects from now on will be engineering, architecture and accountancy."

HIGH COST

He said the Polytechnic was in danger of "ending up in confusion."

It was a young plant just beginning to sprout from the ground and was costing several million dollars.

The changes at the Polytechnic were part of the Government's general re-assessment of technical education in Singapore.—Reuter.

Misplaced Stomach

Butterworth, Sept. 3.

A seven-week-old boy, born with his stomach in his chest, was flown to Australia today for corrective surgery.

A Royal Australian Air Force Hercules prop-jet plane, specially diverted for the 4,000-mile mercy flight to Brisbane, took off this morning from this North Malayan air base.

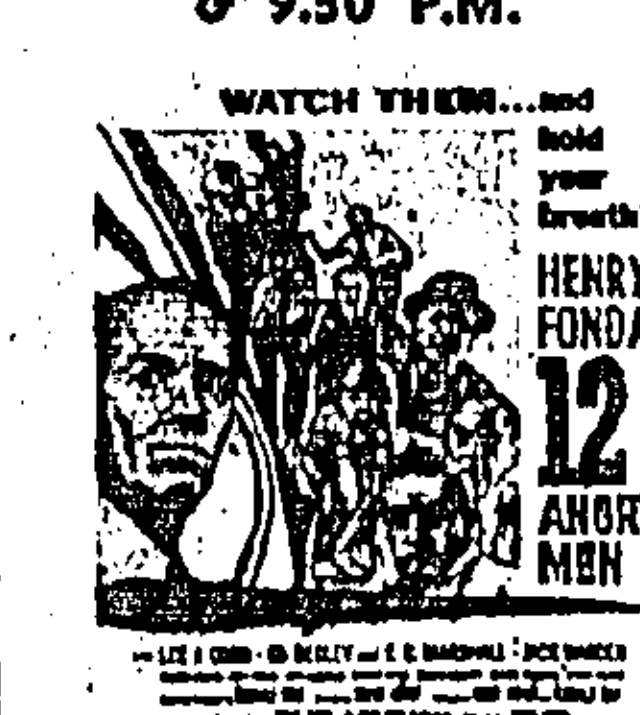

The baby, Kevin McDonald, was born with the misplaced stomach on July 15 in Penang to Australian Aircraftman James McDonald and his wife. He was placed in a sealed, oxygen-supplied crib, insulated against sound and temperature changes.

The parents and a two-year-old son are accompanying the infant, along with Squadron Leader Dr Gerry Radford and a nurse.

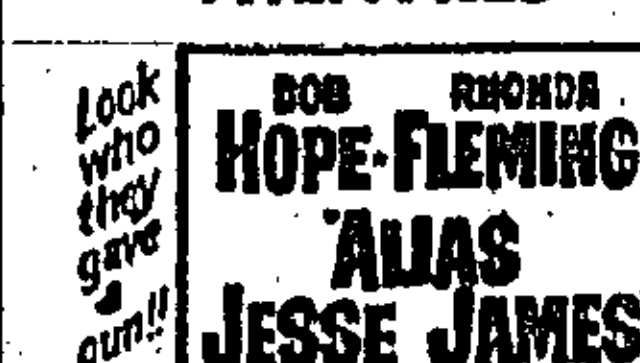

Emergency surgery took place at Brisbane's Mater Children's Hospital.—UPI.

Argentine Army Feud Crisis

Buenos Aires, Sept. 3. A crisis caused by political feuds inside the Argentine army worsened tonight when large sections of the army announced they would take orders only from the Commander-in-Chief who was dismissed yesterday.

A ceremony at which the new C-in-C General Pedro Canelas was to have been sworn in was postponed without explanation after the sacked commander, General Carlos Talarco, Moreno, had a 40-minute interview with President Arturo Frondizi.

The garrisons at Cordoba City and at Bahia Blanca, second largest city in the Argentine, the second third and fifth army divisions and the commanders of the sixth military area, which controls the southern provinces, announced they would take orders only from General Moreno.

The evening newspaper La Nacion reported unconfirmed rumours that a group of young army engineering school officers were setting up a "rebel government" to force the reappointment of General Moreno.

Army Post

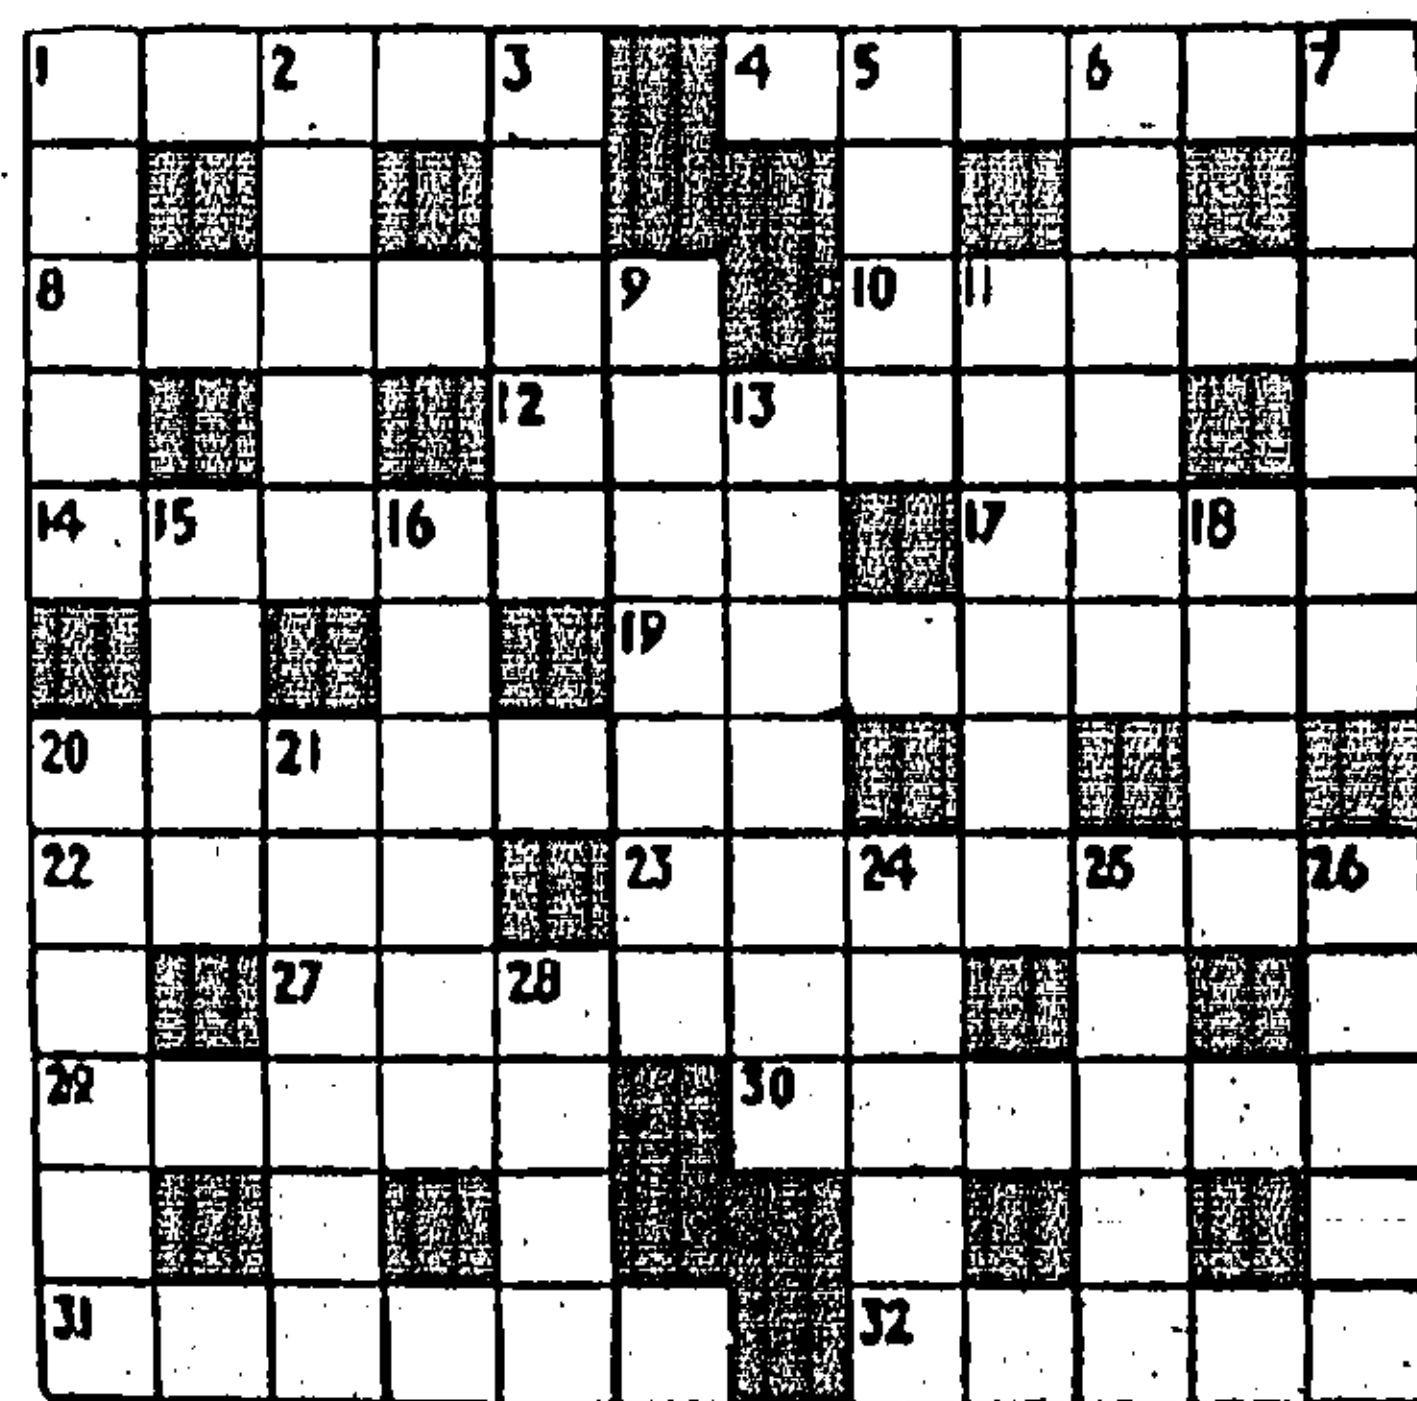

London, Sept. 3. Major General Geoffrey Mison, present commander of the British Army's Fifth Division, has been appointed Chief of Staff General Headquarters of the Middle East Land Forces from next December, the War Office announced today.

Too Many People In The World

York, Sept. 3. Advocating the universal use of no-cost birth control, an eminent scientist said here today that the rapid increase in the world population was leading mankind to "an extremely unpleasant crash."

Dr. L. Harrison Matthews, Director of the Zoological Society of London, told the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science he was surprised that there were bishops willing to discuss such horrors.

"It is difficult to believe that it is right to inflict indescribable suffering upon people, but to avoid procreating, then to endure such horrors," he said.

The lesson for mankind to learn from the study of animals was that an uncontrolled increase in numbers inevitably built up to a crash.

Dr. Harrison Matthews added that birth control should be available to all at low, or preferably, no cost after a survey had determined the best population density for each part of the world.—China Mail Special.

He said the Western powers—particularly the United States—were anxious and "eager to rescue the people of Asia to a state of alarm about China."

"Alarm produces weakness and not strength. We ought not to be led by the political strategy of the West into greater dependence on their favours."

He said India as a whole stood for non-alignment and fully supported Mr. Nehru in this.—Reuters.

But after conferring with King Frederik of Denmark tonight, a high Danish Court official at the castle said no engagements would be announced after the ball, which followed a private dinner party given by King Frederik and Queen Ingrid.—Reuters.

Cousins Refuses To Budge

Blackpool, Sept. 3. One of Britain's most powerful labour leaders today refused to back down on his H-bomb challenge to the Labour Party leadership.

Frank Cousins, General Secretary of the giant Transport and General Workers Union, insisted on allowing his H-bomb resolution to stand. The resolution repudiates official Labour policy on the H-bomb and party leader Hugh Gaitskell's "non-nuclear club" plan.

Cousins refused to budge during a policy-making meeting on the eve of the Trades Union Council General Council Congress.

However, the TUC, Britain's overall labour organization, made it clear they would subdue Cousins and his rebel attempt in the interests of preserving unity in the face of the expected general election in which United Nations discussion of Cousins' resolution.—UPI.

They said the exiled Tibetan "God King" told the diplomats his government had taken all possible measures to bring about a peaceful settlement with the Chinese but they had not proved receptive to reasonable proposals.

Amsterdam Red Light District Invaded

Amsterdam, Sept. 3. The red light district here was doing "business as usual" today because of a strange alliance between police and the men who live off prostitutes' earnings to beat the recent invasion of teen-age gangs.

Amsterdam had been without teen gangs longer than most European capitals, but in recent months the "teddy boys" formed into vicious groups that have been attacking anyone who got in their way.

Last week the hoodlums fired off stirring up trouble in the more sedate areas of Amsterdam and moved in on the red light district which extends along the canals of the city near the Royal palace. They robbed and beat prostitutes, their procurers and their customers.

DAM SQUARE

Then Tuesday night the teen gangs descended on "Dam Square" in front of the Royal palace, where they were met by a small army of toughs who "protect" the girls in the district.

A free-swinging battle followed, in which the procurers and toughs gave the teddy boys a thorough beating. Amsterdam policemen looked the other way.

A spokesman for the procurers called the Amsterdam Police Commissioner and told him the red light district expected police protection.

But he said that to be on the safe side, the district's own "arm" would set up "patrols" of hundreds of men in the area.

Since Tuesday police have found themselves in the peculiar position of beating off a "reconnissance" group of young hoodlums on the lookout for the opposing army, armed with blow pipes filled with needles and pins.—UPI.

Afraid To Tell About Murder

London, Sept. 3. Someone with information about the recent killing of 11-year-old Miles Vallentin is afraid to come forward, police said here today.

They believed that the boy was killed possibly in a car in the derelict garden of an old vicarage at suburban Croydon, where he was found strangled last Friday.

In a new appeal for public co-operation in tracing the murderer police today promised that any information received would be treated confidentially.

Detectives continued door-to-door inquiries at houses and shops.—China Mail Special.

Russians Don't Want Another War

London, Sept. 3. Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said today he was convinced Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is "as anxious not to have a war as we are."

Field Marshal Montgomery was speaking to a graduating class of hospital nurses. "Everyone hopes there will not be another war in our time, and that is what I believe," he said. "It was to get checked up on that that I went to Moscow to see Mr. Khrushchev. Some people thought it was a strange thing for me to do, but I thought it most sensible."

"One of the things I found out was that he and his people are as anxious not to have a war as we are, and that is good," Montgomery said.

In Edmonton, Alberta, Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling said he believes there will not be a third world war and that the last nuclear bomb test was fired on November 4.

Dr. Pauling, who won the Nobel Prize for his work in chemistry, pointed out last night that leaders as well as the common people would be in the front lines in a nuclear war. He is convinced that no one, either in the Eastern or Western world, wants to risk the extinction of half the world's people which would come if nuclear warfare were unleashed.

Testing of nuclear bombs by Russia, the United States and the United Kingdom now total 160 megatons of energy, equivalent to 100-million tons of TNT. Dr. Pauling told an audience of more than 2,000 in Edmonton's Jubilee Auditorium. The radiation and fallout from these bombs is sufficient to result in the death of a million-and-a-half people, he added.

Bone Cancer
The results would appear in bone cancer and mental defects. Thousands have already been so affected, Dr. Pauling said.

The use of bomb shelters for protection and civil defence efforts are a waste of time and money, the scientist said. Such efforts might protect a few thousand people, he added, but the only logical objective of mankind should be to prevent further bomb testing and certainly to avoid an international war.

Dr. Pauling said the nuclear bomb stockpiles now is sufficient to entirely destroy the world.—UPI.

Henderson recalled today on his 80th birthday anniversary that his parents named him Jackson Eccles David James Nathaniel Sylvester Willie Edward Demosthenes Henderson in honour of his uncles in the hopes at least one of them would leave him something in the way of a legacy.

Henderson said all he got out of it was the name and a pair of pants from one uncle.—UPI.

Brother Penetrates Coma

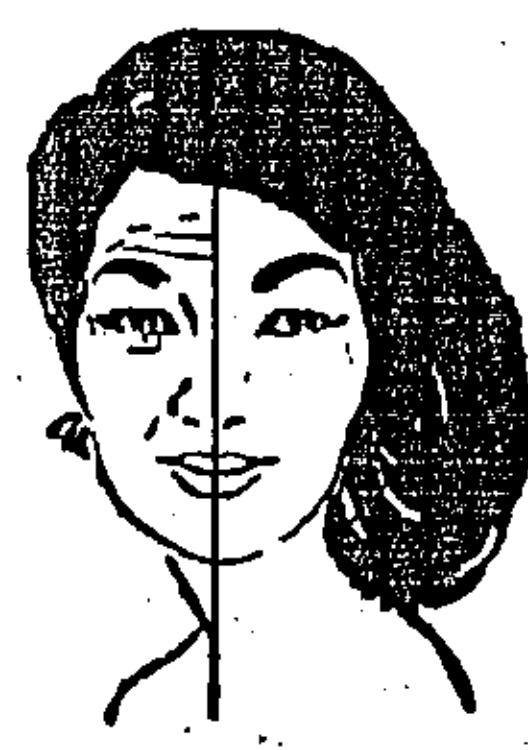

Melbourne, Sept. 3. John Plunkett, 24-year-old Birmingham carpenter whose air fare from England was paid by gifts from readers of a Melbourne newspaper today said he believed he was "getting through" to his brother Michael, 21, who has been in a semi-coma in St Vincent's Hospital, Melbourne since he arrived from England last March.

John arrived earlier this week. He said today: "I think I am beginning to reach Michael now. I am doing it with a letter, a snapshot, and all the prayers I can offer."

John said he had read to Michael a letter from friends in Dublin. "Every time I read it to Michael he nods," John said. "Yesterday I showed him again a family snapshot. He definitely recognised members of the family."

"It is still hard to say whether he is getting better, but the nurses say he seems to be improving." —China Mail Special.

Percy, 72, Digs His Own Shelter For H-Bomb War

London.
At the bottom of Percy Hill's garden there is a tunnel 6 ft deep and nearly 12 ft long.

Mr Hill, 72, is digging it himself. The tunnel, he says, will lead to an H-bomb shelter to protect his wife and family. For he believes there will be a war before he is 86.

But he's having to do all the work himself—digging, carrying away buckets of earth and brick-laying. Why?

"The family regards it as just a stupid waste of time," he said.

"They don't want anything to do with it. They take the same attitude as the neighbours who are all laughing their heads off. But it will be a different tune when war breaks out."

H-Bomb Proof?

After several months' work Mr Hill of Brunswick Terrace, Wednesday, Staffs, in Great Britain, has almost completed the tunnel.

The shelter at the end will consist of three compartments made of concrete slabs. The roof will have tubular metal supports.

What makes him think it will be H-bomb proof? "It's based on designs being issued to people in America by their government," he said.

"I simply believe in being prepared. More and more arms are being produced and within the next 14 years some incident will occur which will send up the balloon."

When will the shelter be finished? "At my age I'm finding it rather tough going, so it may be sometime. But then I am not expecting war immediately. It would be a great relief, though, if only some of the family were to change their minds and lend a hand."

Says Mr Hill's wife, Alice: "I can't see much point in it, but at least it keeps him amused."

His son, Eric, who helps him run a furniture shop: "I don't want anything to do with it. It's dad's own affair."

TROUBLE-SPOT ISLANDS SNUB TALKS OFFER

THE Prime Minister of the British-protected chain of Maldiv Islands in the Indian Ocean has flatly rejected an invitation from Lord Home, Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations, to come to London this month to talk over the tangle that has soured British-Maldivian relations.

The invitation, together with an offer of British good offices to help settle the civil war in the chain of coral islands, was contained in a message from Lord Home to Mr Ibrahim Nassir, the Maldivian Premier, disclosed in Whitehall last month.

The China Mail now fills in the background to the politics behind this coral island comedy in the Indian Ocean.

The Maldives Comedy

By FRANCIS CASSAVETTI

PITY the Carlton Brownes of the C.R.O. (Commonwealth Relations Office). For the exclusive film rights to what they've got on their plate, the Boulting brothers would have given millions.

Unless you're a stamp collector the Maldiv Islands may not mean much to you. But listen to this:—

They are a chain of 2,000 coral islands, south-west of Ceylon, and they've been a British Protectorate since 1887.

Yet at no time between then and now has Britain ever had a representative in Male, the capital, which with its string of islands has a 90,000-odd population.

Suspensions

Why? Because the men of Male refused to have anyone there. The treaties—1887 and 1953—bluntly laid down:—

"No British interference in the internal affairs of the Maldiv Islands."

So no Briton in the capital because he might not like the way things were run and then, the suspicious islanders fear, he might try to dabble in the murky backwaters of Maldivian politics.

This natural suspiciousness lies at the root of the near-musical comedy deadlock in which Whitehall now finds itself involved over its new RAF staging base—for the Singapore and Australian routes—on Gan island at the southernmost tip of the chain.

The 1953 treaty allows for setting up of British bases in the Maldives. And in December 1956, the Prime Minister in Male signed an agreement accepting the base in Gan.

Unfortunately the Maldivian Government changed in December 1957, when construction work on the airstrip was well started.

Some details of the agreement had still to be settled. The new Male Government's way of

The full story sounds like a film script

BRITAIN RULES —BUT BRITONS ARE BARRED

tackling these was promptly to question what had already been signed and sealed a year before.

Instead of the lease for the base being for 100 years at HK$32,000 a year rent, they suggested the length be cut to 15 years and the rent upped to HK$1,600,000.

At this moment the three southern atolls of the Maldiv chain, with a fifth of the population and including the horse-shoe-shaped Addu group, where Gun is, decided to stage a revolt against the Male Government.

Taxes up

Their cause: to choke off the taxation, especially on their fish and rice, levied by the capital.

These taxes had just been raised by the Government on the ground that the Addu atoll islanders were growing fat on the wages paid by the R.A.F.

So, declared Male, the British were to blame; they were fomenting the revolt. They were in daily contact (in fact negligible) with the rebels.

The next thing the British knew they were partially involved in the civil war whether they liked it or not.

The people of the rebel Huvadu atoll—denied supplies from Male—saw near starvation. So Britain, telling Male first, sent food there from Gan.

That confirmed Government suspicions of their complicity. The Male authorities decided to assert themselves: they sent their gendarmes, with rifles, revolvers, and a few Tommy guns, to subdue the rebels.

On Huvadu, the unarmed islanders were massacred; and the revolt is now stamped out everywhere except Addu atoll, where the British base is.

And there it rests. The British are taking no sides. But they can't stand by and let the Addu atoll islanders be brutally trampled on. And they've told Male so.

The normal place for dealing between the British and Maldivian Governments is Colombo, where Male has its representative. Now that point of contact has gone dead.

That's how the plot stands at the end of the second act. The third one, the unravelling, has still to be written.

OUR grand-parents travelled by horse-carriages with a load of well-fastened trunks. Today, planes make travelling on holiday easy and a whole family can pack their requirements in one suitcase. On the Continent distance means little, and Italian families who can afford it (or with business plans to include) think nothing of hopping on a plane, or even two, to spend a week-end in Paris, London — or both!

Because they pack so little, Italian women don't fuss. A single suitcase, the right fabrics and good planning, ensure that the whole family can be well-dressed throughout a week-end of sightseeing, evenings at the theatre, and dinners in smart restaurants.

The choice of wool fabrics is enormous, but Italians love wool gabardine which is smooth, smart, hard-wearing and cannot "rub up". Because it is virtually creaseless, even the poorest packer would only need to hang a gabardine outfit by an open window (or in a steamy bathroom) for a short while in order to restore it to pristine freshness.

The lady

The lady of the family has a number of choices as to the outfit she selects, but it is always interchangeable. It could be a classic suit while travelling, she wears it with an orange wool jersey and a small hat-protecting cap. To change its personality for sightseeing or luncheon she wears a beautiful white scarf and hat in padded wool tulle (the ultra-light fabric with the open surface). For the theatre she changes to an elegant blouse in the finest white wool voile splashed with giant-sized, navy spots. She wears a turban to match.

Alternatives

An alternative in outfits is the suit with contrast dress. Here, of course, while colours vary, the fabrics must be the same.

The suit is in cord-coloured gabardine and is worn for travelling. The black gabardine dress, in a lightweight, is perfect for evening events and can be dressed up with jewelry. The dress plus jacket makes an interesting day-time outfit. Here the mood can be further varied with coloured accessories by day and black at night.

Another combination consists of a tan-coloured wool gabardine coat very simply and comfortably cut on kimono lines — plus a suit with a short straight jacket and deep sailor collar which can be turned down over the collarless coat. To dress up, the skirt is worn with a very low-necked blouse of fine printed wool, with turban or cloche to match. With a combination like this, a woman is also prepared for all weathers as well as all occasions.

Finally

In the final choice, the Italian woman votes her fabric for the widest wardrobe choice of all. She travels in a very smart cord-dress in sand-coloured gabardine plus matching hat.

She carries one of the new capacious, brightly coloured, handwoven wool handbags. Her packing includes a two-piece in lightweight wool tulle, and a handkerchief weight printed wool chemise dress-planning for a really ambitious programme.

The men

Father, as usual, is the simplest traveller of all. He wears a single-breasted suit in navy wool gabardine and has packed a long-sleeved lambswool cardigan which he can change with his jacket for casual wear.

The young fellow wears a pint-sized copy, but his suit jacket has side vents and his trousers have turn-ups. He has a sweater packed in the family suitcase.

Back to girls

Small daughter wears a pretty and practical trapeze line dress in pastel blue wool gabardine and, with her airline bag, looks a really seasoned traveller. Her "packings" are a pretty button-up cardigan for extra warmth and wool jersey dirndl skirt in grey stripes.

By the way, here is an extra tip for women travellers. Pack two wide white detachable linen collars placed between boards at the bottom of the suitcase. They take up no space, but certainly add enormous glamour to your black wool dress, the collarless coat or the simple tailored suit.

ON ARRIVAL

A country suit in cerise tweed is teamed with a loose topcoat in a companion fabric. The jacket is belted in front, a typical touch from Stiebel's collection.

German-Style Party To Honour The Boss

DOWN into old New York the Chef and I drove. We found the loft building, entered and followed the strains of a gay German folk song up two flights of steep stairs.

The door swung open on a birthday party, given by his employees for Dr. Peter Schuller, a physician and creator of hundreds of inventions, including the famous filter method of making coffee in a replica of the glass beaker used by chemists.

In Full Swing
The party was in full swing. The huge air-conditioned room, part of the business quarters, was lined with small packing cases and centred with long tables covered with spotless light blue cloth. Two huge bouquets of American Beauty roses decorated the tables.

"We use these tables for assembling orders to pack and send out," explained one of the girls. "But on the Doctor's birthday, and at Christmas, work is forgotten and the tables are used for refreshments."

Singing And Dancing
The accordionist struck up a tune. Everybody sang and danced. Then there was supper with many toasts for the Doctor.

The feast consisted of a huge roast turkey, with stuffing, and two salads—German style potato salad and German green bean salad.

For dessert, there was a multi-layer chocolate cake and lots of hot coffee.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

ONE careless play can ruin a lot of good bidding.

North and South bid well to reach the heart slam and South would have had no problem without the spade opening. Actually, there was no problem anyway but South got careless.

He grabbed the spade with dummy's ace and drew trumps with three leads. Four diamond tricks were taken most with his low spade going on the last diamond. Then he led the queen of clubs and forgot to cover with his king.

At this point West was ready with the winning defence. He let the queen hold.

Now, South ruffed a spade to get back to his hand and led the king of clubs. West played the ace. Of course, North trumped it but now South had no way to

To prevent an icy consistency in a mousse or bombe, substitute corn syrup for part of the sugar. One part corn syrup to two parts sugar is a good rule.

To open a canning jar when the lip of the rubber ring is torn off, place the jar on a folded cloth or paper towel in the top section of double boiler and heat. When the moisture in the jar starts to evaporate, the lid can be removed easily.

SUCCESS STORY

SIGNORA Romyne Giorgini may have an Italian-sounding name — but she's as English as can be!

Romyne, daughter of Viscountess Monsell whose husband was Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, is the great-granddaughter of the Earl of Ypres. Her mother, the former Miss Essex French, was one of the most beautiful debutantes of her day.

Romyne was sent to Florence to a finishing school to complete her education. There, in best fairy-tale tradition, she met and fell in love with Vittorio Giorgini, son of the famous Signor Giorgini who organises some of the wonderful fashion collections shown at Florence's renowned Palazzo Pitti.

Stipulation

When Romyne married Vittorio she lived in an atmosphere of fashion, fashion-designing and fashion presentation. And, despite the strenuous competition she knew existed in Italy's thriving world of fashion, she decided to take up fashion designing.

Although her father-in-law was dubious, he gave her advice and guidance. But he stipulated: no exhibition at the Palazzo Pitti until her firm had proved itself... over several seasons.

Romyne, however, was undaunted. Encouraged by the excited competitive work going on all around her, she set to work.

She and a girl friend, Letizia di Salvo, designed skirts and separates and studied fabric printing.

They went to school to learn dyeing techniques, set up a minute workshop, and working entirely on their own initiative brought out their first fabric design.

The Test

Finally came the test. Their own skirt collection was exhibited at the Grand Hotel in Florence, and their lively patterns and wonderful colours met with instant success.

Where did the pattern designs and colours come from? The lovely gardens of Florence, which were Romyne's inspiration.

Now Romyne has, in her own words, "hit the jackpot." Her high-fashion casuals are favourites, and her own boutique, Lo Scatolaccio (meaning The Doodler) is visited by the elite of Italy.

But her biggest triumph was her acceptance by her fashion-organiser father-in-law. Romyne is now allowed to exhibit at the Palazzo Pitti.

The Travellers' Return

—Back From the South, Birds Face a Housing Shortage—

By MAX TRELL

KNARF, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-About Name, came into the room and sat down beside his sister Hanid, who was making a doily.

"They're all back," he said.

"They are?" said Hanid as she went on with her work. Then suddenly she looked up and asked, "Who's back?"

"They are," said Knarf. "The ones who were away all Winter! Don't you know who I mean?"

A Good Idea

"No, I don't," said Hanid. Knarf decided it would be a good idea to explain things to Hanid.

"I went to the park this morning. You know that maple tree right near the stone wall?" Hanid nodded.

"It's the one where the Squirrel lives, isn't it?"

"That's the one," said Knarf. "I took a walk to the park just a little while ago. I found the Squirrel, Squire Squirrel, sitting at the bottom of the tree. He waved to me and I went over to him."

"Can you speak to Squirrels?" Hanid said.

"Sure I can," said Knarf. "Sometimes I don't understand all the words but I can guess what they mean."

"I went over to Squire Squirrel and I shook hands with him. I asked him how he felt. He made a squeak. I knew that meant he felt fine."

"I was about to go away when all of a sudden a Bird flew up." "A Bird?" said Hanid.

Bird-Talk

"It was a Robin," said Knarf. "It began talking to Squire Squirrel. I listened."

"Do you mean," said Hanid to her brother, "that you understand Bird-language, too?"

"Most of the times I do," said Knarf. "I understand it the way I understand Squirrel-language."

Friends And Neighbours

"Just look," he said—and he pointed up with his paw—"they've all come back from the South, all your friends and neighbours—the Swallows and Thrushes and Magpies and Blackbirds—"

"Oh, dear, I heard the Robin say, 'Where can I go now? I've got to find a tree to live in!'"

"Try that elm tree at the other end of the park," Squire Squirrel said.

"And the Robin thanked him and flew away."

"That's right," said Knarf. "The Robin wanted to move into the tree and build a nest on one of the branches. But Squire Squirrel said there wasn't any room left."

"That's right," said Knarf. "The Robin wanted to move into the tree and build a nest on one of the branches. But Squire Squirrel said there wasn't any room left."

How do you know that?

"I met a Caterpillar and he told me so," said Knarf.

"What?" exclaimed Hanid. "Can you also talk to Caterpillars?"

"But this time, Knarf just laughed."

"I can guess what they say without even listening," he said. "The only thing they ever want to do is eat."

A Robin flew up to Squire Squirrel.

"And that," said Knarf to Hanid, "is how I know they're all back—I mean all the other Birds. Why, there isn't even room for a Caterpillar!"

"How do you know that?" asked Hanid.

"I met a Caterpillar and he told me so," said Knarf.

"What?" exclaimed Hanid. "Can you also talk to Caterpillars?"

"But this time, Knarf just laughed."

"I can guess what they say without even listening," he said. "The only thing they ever want to do is eat."

U.S. Tennis Singles Tournament Begins Today

FOREIGN PLAYERS TIPPED TO WIN BOTH MEN'S AND WOMEN'S TITLES

Forest Hills, Sept. 4.

The fifth United States tennis singles championships open today with foreign-born stars favoured to sweep both the men's and women's crown for the first time in 33 years. Alex Olmedo of Peru and Neale Fraser of Australia were the top threats in the men's division and three foreigners—Maria Bueno of Brazil, Sandra Reynolds of South Africa and Britain's tall teen-ager, Christine Truman—were seeded higher in the women's singles than the leading American player.

Lions' Manager Gives Two Reasons Of Team's Defeats

Auckland, Sept. 3. Mr. A. W. Wilson, manager of the touring British Isles Rugby Union team, named two factors here today which he said had contributed to the team's defeats.

The first was the Lions' failure to adhere to the agreed policy of attack based upon running with the ball. The second was injuries to key players at important times.

Said Mr. Wilson: "In our first week together we all agreed our playing policy should be attack based upon running with the ball. Unfortunately there have been times when this policy has been departed from. Even when the team has been playing badly, ventures with the ball have produced tries."

ADVANTAGE IN SPEED

"Generally speaking, we have had the advantage in speed over the New Zealanders. It has been our fault when we have not put our trust in that speed."

Mr. Wilson said that injuries had been a "disarming factor". Key players from both the back and forward departments had been lost at important times.

Nevertheless, Mr. Wilson said, his own expectations had been largely realized. He believed the Lions had proved themselves a first team.

The New Zealand forward play had been supremely good, and the back play a good deal better than its reputation.

China Mail Special.

There hasn't been a foreign-born sweep since 1926 when Rene La Coque of France and Nicola Pietrangeli of Australia won the two titles.

Olmedo, holder of the Australian Wimbledon and U.S. indoor crown, opens his bid today against Don Russell, a third-string Australian, and flares to win easily regardless of his form.

Top Games

Fourth-seeded Rod Laver of Australia, seventh-seeded Earl Buchholz of St. Louis and eighth-seeded Ray Emerson of Australia are the other headliners down for action on the opening day. All have been drawn against U.S. opponents.

Others, including second-seeded Fraser and third-seeded Harry Markov of the U.S. begin tomorrow.

Laver will be matched against Arthur Ashe Jr. Buchholz drew John Boardman and Emerson has been scheduled to play John Skogstad.

Only three of the eight seeded women drew opening day matches. Miss Truman will meet Dorothy Bundy Cheney of the U.S. in the centre court opener, sixth-seeded Ann Haydon of England will play Barbara Browning of the U.S., and Sally Ann Moore of the U.S. seeded eighth will have Carol Caldwell of the U.S. as her opponent.

Miss Truman, Wimbledon winner and top-seeded, plays her first match tomorrow as does Miss Reynolds and America's top threat, fourth-seeded Darlene Hard.

Vacant Titles

Both men's and women's titles are vacant. Ashley Cooper of Australia surrendered his men's championship when he turned professional with Jack Kramer. Althea Gibson of New York, one-time women's champion, retired for a year and is not defending.

Annual Santana of Spain plays Bill Tully of the U.S. today and Sergio Tacchini of Italy meets Ron Barness of Brazil tomorrow.

Santana and Tacchini are the only entrants from continental Europe. Two Englishmen are entered. Tony Pickard of Britain plays Juan Hermosilla of Guatemala today and Bob Wilson plays Dennis Tolson of the U.S. tomorrow.—UPI.

Art Ditmar Pitches Yankees To 9-2 Win Over Senators

New York, Sept. 3.

Art Ditmar of the New York Yankees pitched no-hit ball for 6-2/3 innings today and wound up with a four-hit 9-2 victory over the Washington Senators.

Roy Sievers broke up Ditmar's no-hit bid with two out in the seventh when he arched his 18th homer into the lower left field stands and Clint Courtney hit a pinch homer in the eighth for Washington's only other run.

The victory was Ditmar's fourth in a row and 11th of the season against eight defeats. He struck out seven and walked only two. Russ Kemmerer, who had defeated the Yankees three times previously this season, suffered his 16th loss compared with eight victories. He yielded five of the Yankees' runs and nine innings he pitched.

First Two Runs

Singles by Mary Thyrnerberry, Clyde Boyer and Ditmar plus Bobby Richardson's squeeze bunt produced New York's first two runs in the second inning. The Yankees routed Kemmerer in the third when they added three more runs on three singles and errors by Sievers and Reno Bertoia.

Hal Griffes gave up New York's final four runs in the eighth.

Richardson and Mickey Mantel each collected three hits for the Yankees, with Richardson driving in three runs. The Boston Red Sox played the Orioles in a night game at Baltimore in the only other league action.

ENGLAND'S PLANS HAMPERED BY FIXTURE CLASH

By ROY PESKETT

A four-fold fixture clash on the evening of September 23 is seriously hampering plans for the rebuilding of the England Soccer team. On that night England are due to meet Hungary in an Under-23 international; the Football League play the Irish League in Belfast; and Wolves meet the East Berlin team, Voewarts, in a European Cup game.

The fixture muddle is highlighted by another European Cup match that day, between Linfield and Gothenburg, in Sweden.

The League and the FA will both give Wolves first choice of their own players. The gate in Belfast will be ruined by the absence of top-ranking English stars, and local idol Jackie Milburn, manager of Linfield.

Discussions have already taken place between the two Leagues, but the fixtures stand.

League Will Wait

Meanwhile, the League have assured the FA selectors that they will not choose their team until after the announcement of the Under-23 side. So Jimmy Greaves, Bobby Charlton and the other bright young stars will play against Hungary.

An unlucky run of injuries has also caused alterations in the plans of the selectors.

briefed from the start of the season to watch a number of players.

Five men in the running for England caps are now out of action—Bryan Douglas (Blackburn Rovers), Johnny Haynes (Fulham), Peter Broadbent (Wolves), Tony Kay (Sheffield Wednesday), and John Mortimore (Chelsea).

Haynes and Mortimore joined the list last week. The Fulham captain will be out for at least three weeks with a left knee laceration, and looks like missing six First Division matches, plus the Inter-League game.

Haynes has been seeing a specialist and was rather pessimistic when I spoke to him. "When I had a similar injury to my right knee last season I was off for six weeks. It's pretty painful now that the injection has worn off," he told me.

His countryman, A. Gushing took second place with 537, while Czechoslovakia's K. Mucha was third with 555.

The Soviet team also took first place in the final team standings with 2,197 points. Czechoslovakia was second with 2,180 and Switzerland third with 2,173. Sweden was fourth (2,100) and Finland fifth (2,142). Norway occupied 12th place, with 2,080.

GLAMORGAN MAKE LATE CHALLENGE FOR RUNNER-UP POSITION

London, Sept. 3.

Glamorgan are making a strong late challenge to finish second in the English county cricket championship.

They will manage this if they beat Middlesex at Lord's and Surrey either lose or draw with Northamptonshire at the Oval.

Surrey, in fact, could wind up in fourth place should they not defeat Northamptonshire, for Gloucestershire will go above them because they have more bonus points.

Glamorgan gained a lead of 95 and also took bonus points at Lord's. Frank Clarke, the fast-medium bowler, took five Middlesex wickets for 66—his best performance.

Last-Wicket Stand

Surrey looked to have first innings lead in their pockets but Northamptonshire's last pair, Jack Manning (53) and

Frank Tyson (16 not out) hit 51 in 20 minutes and gave their side a lead of 12.

With Ken Barrington again in form, Surrey finished 154 ahead with six wickets left and so still have a good chance of victory.

Scores

Close of play scores in today's cricket matches were:

At Scarborough: MCC, 329 for nine declared and secondly 22 for no wicket. Yorkshire 331 for five declared (W. Stott 83, H. Bird 53, J. Bolus 42, R. Illingworth 103 not out).

At The Oval: Surrey 206 and secondly 166 for four (A. Parsons 41, K. Barrington 65 not out). Northamptonshire 218 (D. Barrie 60, J. Manning 53, T. Lock five for 67).

Russians Confident Of Beating Britain In 2-Day Athletic Match

Moscow, Sept. 3.

Britain's athletics team which meets Russia at the mammoth Lenin Stadium here this weekend will not be definitely named until tomorrow or one hour before the meeting begins on Saturday, the team's directors announced at a press conference today.

The Russian team is confident of taking a relatively easy victory from the British at the two-day meeting.

The Russians expect to win in all events except the shot put where Britain's Arthur Rowe is their opinion their only threat.

Rowe, however, who recently put the shot over 60 feet may not be able to make the meeting due to the illness of his mother. He was not on the plane carrying the British trackmen when it left London today.

12 New Participants

So certain of success are the Soviets, in fact, that they are entering 12 new participants in the meeting to give them experience in international competition.

The 12 were not among the star athletes who faced the U.S. and West Germany earlier this season. Yan Krasovskiy of Leningrad for instance, will replace Russian champion Ivan Petrenko in the pole vault.

The Russian men's team to face Britain will be:

100 and 200 metres: Modolin, Konovalex.

400 metres: Matzoulevitch, Grachev.

800 metres: Savinkov, Zimbalov.

1,500 metres: Okorokov, Platin.

TURIN GAMES Russian Better Own Decathlon World Record

Turin, Sept. 3.

Vassily Kuznetsov of Russia bent his own world best performance for the pentathlon with a score of 4,007 points for the five events at the World Student Games here today.

There is no official world record for the pentathlon, which consists of five of the 10 decathlon events—long jump, javelin, discus, 200 metres and 1,500 metres.

Kuznetsov's previous world's best was 3,901 points, set in the Soviet Union in April, 1958.

The jury later amended Kuznetsov's points total to 4,007.

Hermann Salomon, Germany, was second with 3,520 points and Milos Vajtek, Czechoslovakia, third with 3,048 points.

Kuznetsov's individual performances were:

Long Jump — 7.18 metres — 845 points.

Kunaki Watanabe, Japan, reached the six-man final of the 800 metres track event by finishing second in his heat in one minute, 51.9 seconds.

Fastest of the qualifiers was Rudolf Klavan, Austria, in one minute, 50.8 secs.

Klavan had been disqualified from the Games and then reinstated after a letter from the Austrian Students Union, vetoing his participation had been first accepted and then rejected by the Games organisers.

Japan's two printers, Norihiko Kubo and Yoshiaki Osada both qualified for the semi-finals of the 100 metres. Kubo won his heat in 11.0 seconds and Osada finished third in another heat in 11.1 secs.

THE GAMBOLS

THE ELUSIVE CHAMPIONSHIP

Brabham And Brooks Have Best Chances To Win World Driving Title

By STIRLING MOSS

Although my run of bad luck ended when I won the Portuguese Grand Prix last Sunday, I am afraid there is very little hope of my winning the World Championship this year.

In fact the total points given in the newspapers (Brabham 27, Brooks 23, Moss 17½) are slightly optimistic, from my point of view, because they merely represent the gross total each of us has scored to date.

For the Championship only the best five results count. It works out that either Brooks or Brabham won both remaining races and got the fastest laps they would each have 41 points.

The maximum I can hope for, by two wins and fastest laps, is 34½ points.

Of course either Brooks or Brabham may fail to finish or end low down in the remaining races, but obviously the chances of their both doing so are remote, and, to my mind Brooks is the most likely winner of the Italian Grand Prix next Sunday.

The American Grand Prix, the first ever under our formula, is said to be definitely taking place, but not everyone is absolutely confident that it will. If it doesn't, of course I have no chance at all.

Good Excuse

Some people think it must be very depressing for me to have been runner-up to the World Champion four times already. Naturally it is, but it gives me a good excuse to continue next year. While the Championship eludes me I still have something to fight for. I suppose the general motorist must be very puzzled by the continual trouble I have been having with my gear-box. The explanation is this. Last year, when Bob Walker asked me to drive his car, we decided that his transmission was then inadequate for the purpose. We therefore asked a very clever Italian called Colotti (who used to work for Maserati) to design an entirely new five-speed gear-box to go in the Cooper this year.

This he did, but the gear-box has continuously broken. We have been putting it down all season to failure of the ball-race, but we now feel that the gears may have to be cut again. Last week in Portugal we had not had time to have a new set cut, so we changed the ball-race for a better one and hoped for the best.

In fact it held out, but I was extremely anxious about it throughout the race. I still have faith in Colotti's design and I am hoping to have new gears cut to his specifications in time for the Italian Grand Prix.

Tribute

This leads me to pay tribute once again to the phenomenal Climax engine which powers my Cooper. With all the trouble I have had this year the Climax engine has never let me down. It has fantastic torque, which gives it tremendous power in the lower ranges. This characteristic was instrumental in helping me save my gearbox in my last race. I could pull away from 3,400 revs in fourth gear—an unbelievable performance from a racing engine.

The staggering success of the Coopers this season has led some people to suggest that they are taking the glamour away from motor-racing. Because they are relatively small, the argument goes, they don't have the glamour of the big Formula 1 machines—Vanwall's and Ferraris, or to go back further in history, the Mercedes-Benz and Alfa Romeos.

I do see this point of view. I must say I like big cars, but against this, the most important element in motor racing is competition. There is not much fun in a procession, such as we used to get when the Mercedes-Benz were so superior that they led all the other cars by several miles.

Not Inferior

The point is that the bigger Formula 1 car, like the Ferrari or Vanwall, is very much more difficult to drive than the Cooper. It is rather like the difference between riding a thoroughbred horse and a pony. As it happens there is a dearth of experienced drivers today capable of handling the really big Grand Prix car. But quite a lot of drivers can handle the Cooper, and this gives even and competitive racing which seems to me the heart of the sport.

I don't mean to imply by all this that the Cooper is inferior to the Ferrari or Vanwall. Far from it. It is not quite so fast as the Ferrari, but it makes up for this deficiency in road-holding. Another point—even if there was no Cooper we should be thinking more and more about a smaller car. Wind resistance is getting increasingly important in design, and therefore the frontal area of a car must be reduced as much as possible.

But if there is this absence of real top-grade drivers, people say to me, doesn't that mean motor racing isn't what it was? I don't think so for a moment. Though we have lost a number of great drivers by death or retirement there is some excellent new talent coming up which only needs more experience.

Promising Youngsters

I have written before about the promising young men from America—Phil Hill, Carroll Shelby and Masten Gregory—but I'd like to mention another who, I think, may one day beat them all. He is Dan Gurney, a twenty-seven-year-old Californian.

He is very tall, with a crew cut, and looks like a racing driver. He has not yet had very much experience. He was in Korea with the 8th U.S. Army from 1952-54 and his first real car was a second-hand Triumph T12 which he bought in October, 1955, with 1,800 miles on the clock. After some success with this he bought a 1,600 Porsche on his purchase. Two years ago he sold it and bought another by the same method. The monthly instalments were pretty high, and he has a wife and two children, but he survived somehow, and eventually was spotted by Chinetti, who runs the North American racing team, and given a chance at Le Mans last year.

Impressive

He had his first Grand Prix drive at Rheims this year and put up a very impressive performance. To me he looks extremely fast and very safe. Yet he has had probably less than two dozen major races in the last three years.

The other young driver I should like to pick out is Chris Bristow. He is only twenty-one, but has been driving for some years. He was given his first big chance this season by the British Racing Partnership, which is run by my father and manager. In their Cooper-Borward this year he had some wonderful success. He was first in the Formula 2 section of the British Grand Prix, and won the John Davy Trophy at Brands Hatch the other week, after a fabulous start, beating such old hands as Brabham and Salvadori. He has his first Formula 1 race at Oulton Park on September 27th and I shall be very interested to see how he gets on. But before this, he has a factory drive in a Porsche in the Tourist Trophy next Saturday. There is nothing wrong with the sport when there are exciting young drivers like these coming along.

AUSTRALIA'S RUGBY CAPTAIN WAS A BRITISH CITIZEN!

Sydney, Sept. 3. Until yesterday afternoon Australia's rugby league team for four years — the "Kangaroos" — had a subject of Great Britain as their captain.

Then, in a swift change-of-citizenship ceremony, full-back Keith Barnes became an Australian.

The surprise discovery that Barnes was not an Australian citizen came when he applied for his passport yesterday. Born in Wales, he had not had his citizenship altered when he came to Australia with his parents 12 years ago. Barnes, 24, still retains a slight melodic Welsh accent. Passport officials completed his transfer of citizenship in just 10 minutes yesterday. Australian Rugby League Board of Control secretary Harold Matthews said today: "I don't know what England would have thought about it with a citizen of Great Britain as captain of the Kangaroos. 'Anyway, Keith Barnes is now an Australian.'" — China Mail Special.

Contractor Gets His 1,000 Runs In Hastings Festival Match

Hastings, Sept. 3.

Nari Contractor, the Indian opening batsman who has suffered considerably through injury this season, came into his own at the Hastings Festival in making his first 1,000 runs of the season.

A.E.R. Gilligan's XI, with West Indians Frank Worrell and Garfield Sobers still in, however, finished the day 203 runs ahead with eight second innings wickets in hand.

The Indians, 46 for no wicket overnight, were all out for 285 in reply to Gilligan's XI's first innings of 375 and Gilligan's XI had scored 113 for two wickets in their second innings between tea and the close on the second day.

The match ends tomorrow. Contractor, who had made 24 in an hour yesterday, continued cautiously until after lunch when he displayed skill and power in a series of fine strokes.

He hit 19 fours during his stay of 3½ hours before being caught by Don Carr in the slips.

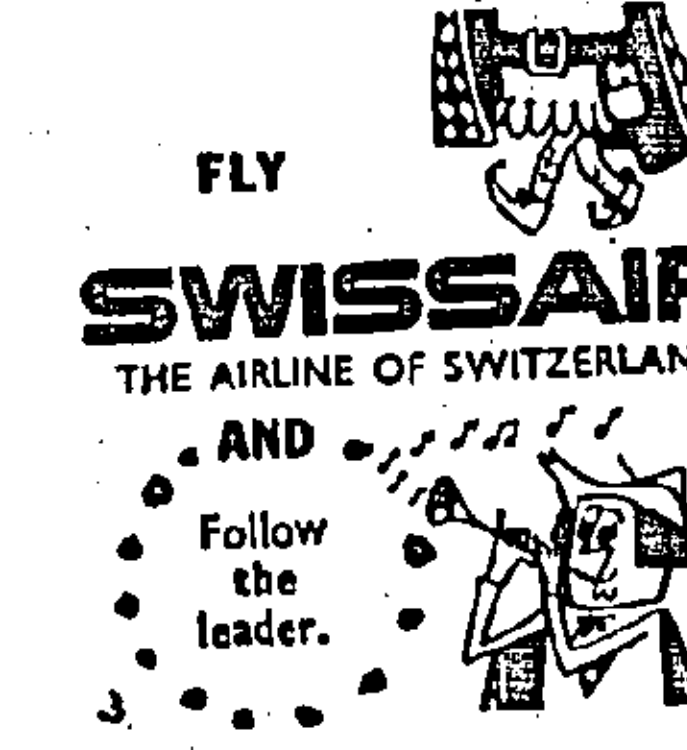

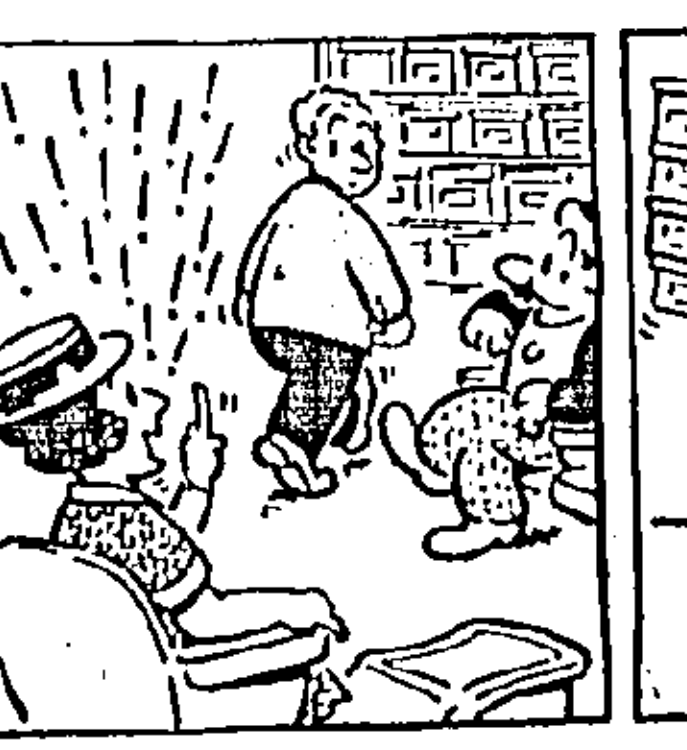

Contractor was the fourth Indian, not counting Abbas Ali Baig, to reach 1,000 runs this season. He was given fine support in a fourth-wicket stand of 65 by Chandrakant Borde (35) and in a fifth-wicket stand by Jayasingh Ghoshale, who hit 43 out of 60 in an hour. — Reuter.

Jimmy Greaves Has A Great Future — If His Fans Don't Destroy Him

Spike-haired Jimmy Greaves sprints through the Peruvian defence, glides the ball into the net and hears the crowd cheer as if he were a hometown boy.

That moment of triumph was submerged amid the general gloom of England's South American tour. But I believe that this was the beginning of an international career which will write an important page in English — and maybe world — football.

For 19-year-old Jimmy Greaves is not just another promising arrival. If allowed to mature naturally, he has the inherent talent to become a great player.

I have spoken to his teammates on the summer tour and they all tell the same story.

Basic Genius

The uphill fight, the torrid heat and the fervent South American fans all combined to ignite the basic genius which lies inside this Chelsea idol.

I had the opportunity at Stamford Bridge recently to form my own opinion of the new Jimmy Greaves when he hit a hat-trick against Preston. Although our defence was watching him closely, he made the art of goal-scoring look simple with his first two, then completed his tally with a long, almost straight run down the middle.

Hallmark Of Fame

When we lined up again, the crowd were still applauding. It was well-deserved applause and I was particularly impressed with his ability to convert half-chances into goals and that almost Latin brand of ball control.

He has, of course, his critics. Haven't we all? Criticism is one of the hallmarks of fame.

The anti-Greaves brigade claim that he doesn't do enough work, that he allows the other forwards to do the work and then poaches the goals.

This accusation could be levelled against nearly all the game's opportunists—but it's very seldom true. An inside-forward of Jimmy's calibre is intelligent enough to realise he can't hope to play full-out for 90 minutes without running himself to a standstill.

Vital Moment

Instead he prefers to hold a little in reserve and wait for the vital moment to strike. This is one of the reasons why he has so often been fresh enough to snatch a match out of the fire when all seemed lost.

This tendency to raise and lower the pace of one's game is a thing shared by nearly all the top players I've known. How often does one see Stanley Matthews chase a bad pass over the by-line? Or Dixie Dean run an unnecessary yard?

To be of full value to your side, you have to learn to preserve your strength. Another reason, I've heard suggested, why Jimmy Greaves won't stay at the top is that he's too small for the hurly-burly of international football. Yet I am sure no one ever said that for long about Scottish inside-forwards like Alex James, Jimmy Dunn or Billy Steele.

Real Threat

I am no giant myself, but I have never found lack of weight any real disadvantage in international games. If you're unafraid, determined and good enough, you can survive in any company.

No, the real threat to Jimmy Greaves' golden future doesn't come from his critics... but from his admirers. He is, after all, only 19 and the age of soccer maturity lies between 28 and 32. He is a top-line performer, but his peak lies far ahead and he should continue improving for years.

It is important for England's sake that he does. But will his fans give him that chance?

If they remember he is still only on the brink of his career and don't expect too much, too soon... then Jimmy will climb the Soccer heights.

Big Handicap

If they begin, however, to expect wonders every time he kicks the ball, they will be helping to destroy him.

It's a big handicap for a player of any age to know that his good games will be taken for granted and that only his mediocre performances will raise comment. At 19 it can be crippling.

Fortunately in Ted Drake he has a manager who understands young players better than most. Perhaps the best guarantee for Jimmy Greaves' future lies within himself. He is rather shy, very likable and desperately keen to learn. It won't be his fault, if he fails.

OFF THE CUFF

Big talking-point in Welsh football is whether DAVE BOWEN, manager of Fourth Division Northampton, will be chosen to lead the national side against England.

I hear that Scottish international BILLY LINDALL—a Liverpool player for 21 years—is to be rewarded with another £1,000—which will give him a record total for British football of £2,500.

Cardiff's Kenanga centre-forward GRAHAM MOORE—a possible successor in the Trevor Ford-John Charles line of international leaders—is being closely watched by at least six clubs.

Campaign Against Diphtheria Begins In HK On Monday

With the onset of the period of increasing infection from diphtheria, a Colony-wide anti-diphtheria campaign will swing into action on Monday.

Dr S. H. Moore, Assistant Director of Health Services, told the China Mail this morning that inoculation teams will be sent to schools and inoculation centres will be set up throughout the Colony.

Major A. J. C. Threlfall of the Hong Kong Regiment has been posted to the Royal Hong Kong Defence Force Reserve of Officers as from August 24 according to the Government Gazette today.

Meanwhile six days have been marked off for advance anti-diphtheria conferences among the schoolmasters to pave the way for the drive among the school children.

Children other than school students may receive inoculations at temporary centres.

Widely Distributed
Literatures, pictures, and films on the origin, infection, symptoms and treatment of the disease will be widely distributed and shown to the public.

Dr Moore said the incidence of diphtheria in the Colony has been on the increase during recent years.

Numbers of cases notified (with deaths in brackets) were 714 (75) in 1956, 1,239 (129) in 1957 and 1,555 (134) in 1958.

For the week ending August 22, the number of cases notified was 27 out of which five patients died.

More than 200 schoolmasters and principals attended an advance conference yesterday at the Yu To San Memorial School in Hongkong.

Previous conferences held were in Yuen Long and Sai Kung, New Territories.

This afternoon at 2 p.m. another conference will be held at Tai Po Government School.

Children Scared

The advance meetings are being held to persuade more students to be inoculated.

During the last years, school children have been scared of the pain and after-effects of the inoculation. But there are no after-effects.

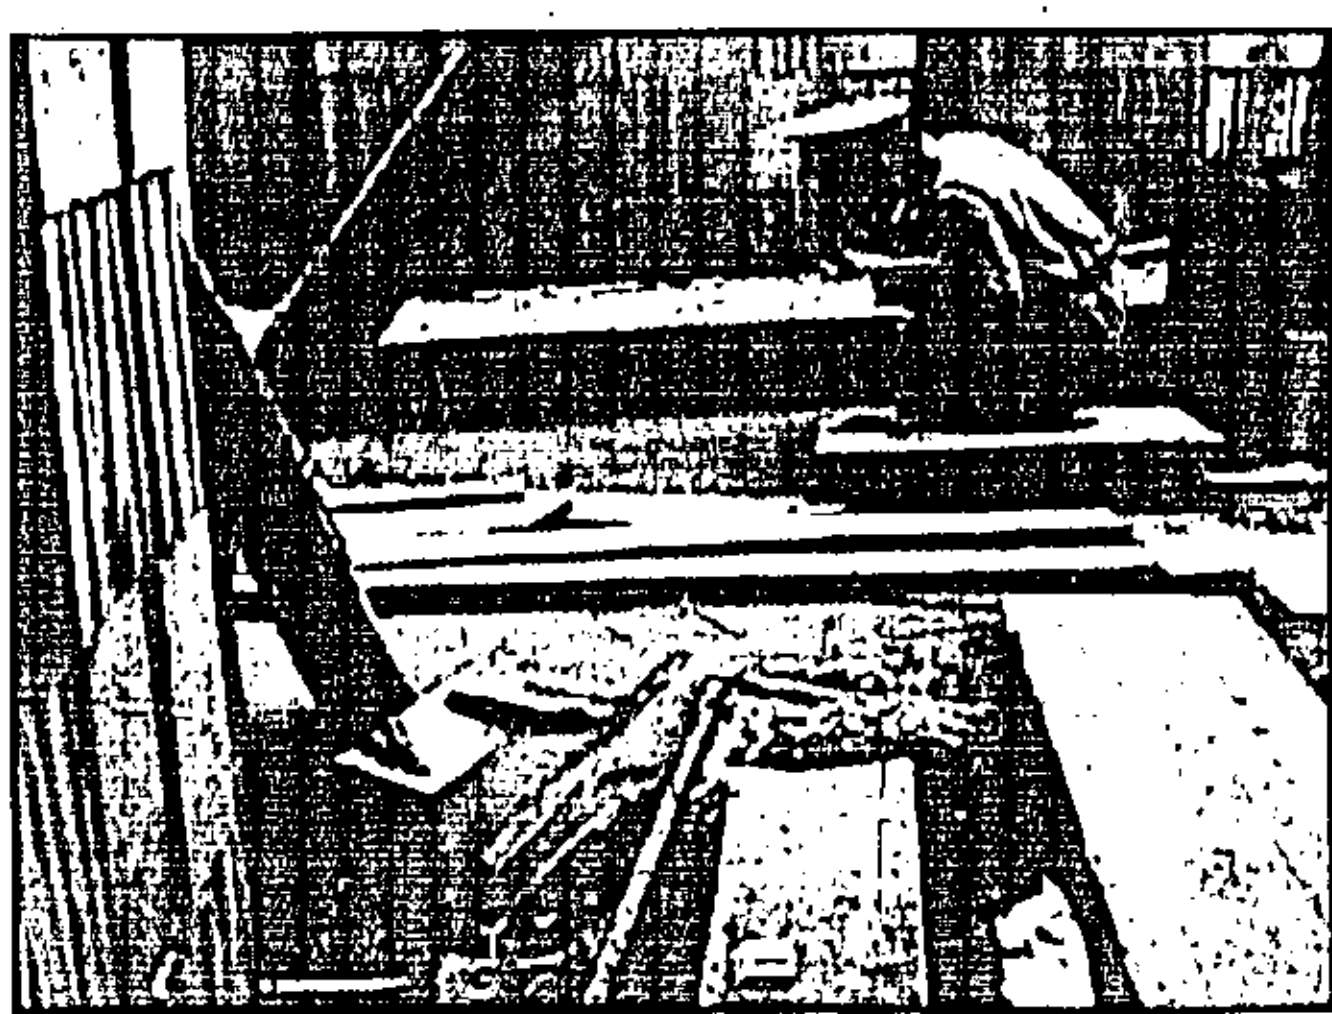

It was considered a good achievement when 600 out of 1,000 students were inoculated.

Any school requiring the service of an inoculation team may send in a letter to the Medical Department telling the number of students to be inoculated.

Mosquito Breeding Ground

Water becomes stagnant after rain and immediately it becomes a breeding ground for mosquitoes. This photograph shows a member of the staff of the Urban Council examining mosquito larvae in a pool of water on a building site. The hollow bricks in the background also collect water and become a breeding ground for mosquitoes.

Builders Told How To Eliminate Mosquitoes

About 100 building contractors and building trade representatives attended the lecture at the Sanitary Department lecture hall this morning to learn how to eliminate mosquitoes at construction sites.

It was the second lecture and Inspector Lam Chung-huen, Pest Control Officer, said this morning's attendance was good and an improvement over the first one last month, when about 70 attended.

Inspector Lam said there were about 600 site-foremen in Hongkong and the lecture will be repeated again.

Two hundred had been invited to each lecture, he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Budget Benefits

Sir,—The report on the front page of yesterday's China Mail by "A China Mail Reporter" on the current prices of Toilet Preparations and Proprietary Medicines is, to say the least, misleading. Who was the "reliable authority" from whom he "learned" his information? Why could he not have obtained the information required for his report personally by interviewing importers and retailers? That is the job of a reporter, surely, not to rely on second-hand information which may well be slanted to suit the "reliable authority's" purpose.

The report lays all the blame for the non-reduction in prices, in these comparatively few cases where no reductions have been made, at the feet of the importers and agents, but is this fair? There are in Hongkong very few instances of agreed retail prices and therefore those who sell to retailers cannot control their selling prices—so even when an importer or agent has reduced his prices there is nothing to stop the retailer pocketing the extra profit—it can get away with it. It was a well-known fact in the trade that retailers pleaded for prices not to be reduced so as to avoid losses on their own duty-paid stocks.

It should also be explained that on a small proportion of medicines were dutiable as Proprietary Medicines and therefore an all-round reduction in prices should never have been expected.

A world of expanding economies and controlled inflation, costs and therefore prices are continually changing (usually upwards) and this has been true of both medicines and cosmetics. Your reporter gives the impression however that the increases in F.O.B. prices were instigated by the local importers.

So many Proprietary Medicines concerned, how can a selection of three of each be said to be a conclusive "authoritative survey" and pray what are 70% and 90% of three respectively, when applied to individual items?

The majority of importers, agents and retailers have no doubt, in view of the public in the matter of the removal of duty on these items so that further immediate reductions in all their retail prices cannot and should not be expected, as a result of your "exposee," for the majority of prices have already been adjusted, for the removal of ad valorem duty. (Items containing alcohol, incidentally, are still subject to duty on their alcohol content, so that duty on Toilet Preparations and Proprietary Medicines was not entirely abolished by Budget).

Those who have not yet adjusted their prices should be encouraged to do so (there is no obligation to do so, so far as I can see) by the public comparing prices from shop to shop and against bills for the same items bought six months or so ago. They will obviously buy from the retailer offering the lowest price and if it is apparent that the importer or agent has not adjusted his price without good reason (increase in basic cost or that the item was never dutiable as a Proprietary Medicine), then they should turn to a competing brand which has passed on the benefit. This is, in fact, no doubt being done by the majority of shoppers.

Defendant then turned and asked his mother for the money, but was also refused. He became angry and started to throw chairs and cups around the house.

A few minutes later, without any reason, defendant struck his daughter with a broom. His mother and his wife tried to stop him but were also assaulted by the defendant.

His mother and his wife then made a report to the police and defendant had nine previous convictions, seven for drunk

New Type Training For British Army

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

The sailing of the yacht "Karifa" from Singapore harbour last Tuesday morning, marked the beginning of a new type of training for the British Army. Although the scheme has been going on for some time, it is only recently that it has been brought into the limelight and given more publicity.

A certain amount of money has been set aside by the authorities for this purpose, the idea of which is to promote initiative, drive and a spirit of adventure.

It will also enable many young men to do and to attempt to do, all sorts of things which in civilian life they might not have the chance to do.

The crew numbers 18 altogether with ten officers and eight privates. None of them with the exception of the skipper, Captain Ernest Goodier-Page, have had much sailing experience.

The forecast when they left was good with no heavy weather.

Latest report from Lt. Charles C. Kirkman who is the only Hongkong representative aboard, was that everyone was settling down very well.

Before he left Singapore he bought some fishing tackle, "to catch sharks and any other large fish," he wrote hopefully.

Lt. Kirkman is stationed with the 5th Field Regt, Royal Artillery at Pandan. The "Karifa" should reach Djakarta today, where, as British ambassadors they will hold a cocktail party on board and entertain the Indonesian Navy.
